Koch: No Timeline Yet For New City Hall, Performing Arts Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

There is no timeline yet for when work could commence on a new high-rise municipal building in Quincy Center that would house city offices and provide a new home for Quincy College, though Mayor Thomas Koch is optimistic he will be able to present plans for the building to the City Council later this year.

The new building, which the mayor touted in his inaugural address earlier this month, would replace the glass city hall annex building. The annex would be razed to make way for a performing arts center. Koch, in a recent interview, said he has been in discussions with a philanthropist who is interested in opening a performing arts center in the Boston area.

Parking for those two buildings could be provided in a new garage that would be built as part of the development of the nearby Quincy

Early Voting For March 3rd Presidential Primary

- Cast Ballots Early Feb. 24-Feb. 28
- Absentee Voting Already Underway

By SCOTT JACKSON

Voters in Quincy and across Massachusetts eager to cast their ballots in the March 3 presidential primary will have the chance to vote in the week leading up to the election; this will be the first year the state has offered early voting ahead of the presidential primary.

Massachusetts and 13 other states, including California and Texas, will hold presidential primaries on March 3. Approximately 40 percent of delegates are up for grabs that day, which is dubbed Super Tuesday. The Democratic and Republican presidential primaries include several candidates with ties to the Bay State.

The early voting period in Massachusetts begins Monday, Feb. 24, and concludes at the end of the day on Friday, Feb. 28.

In Quincy, early voting will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. those days in the lower level of the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall), located at 1305 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

Students Guaranteed School Lunches

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy Public School students will receive a hot school lunch even if they don't have money to pay for it.

The school committee on Jan. 22 unanimously approved an amendment to the school department's food service policy that would prohibit a student being denied a hot school lunch whether or not they have money.

"The school committee will provide regular meals to students who forget, lose or otherwise don't have their lunch money," committee member Paul Bregoli said as he read the amendment. "There have been questions that kids are not getting their lunch because they don't have the money."

Vice Chairperson Anthony Andronico proposed the policy amendment, explaining there have been instances that students who don't have money are denied a hot school lunch.

"I offered this policy because every few months there's a new story that says a student was denied a hot lunch and the student was shamed into a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and asked why they couldn't pay," he said. "That's really disheartening to see. I wanted to make sure that in the Quincy Public Schools that stu-

Mayor, Councillors, School Members Could Get Raises

By SCOTT JACKSON

Raises for Quincy's elected officials – including the mayor and members of the City Council and School Committee – could be on the table this year, Mayor Thomas Koch said.

Koch also said he would likely support increasing city councillors' term in office from two to four years, should members of the council seek to do so, which could spell the end of staggered school board terms.

The budget for fiscal year 2020, which runs through June 30, sets aside $150,942 for the mayor's salary and provides each of the nine city councillors a salary of $22,673. The mayor and city councillors each receive a $7,200 travel allowance as well. The school system's budget includes a $9,000 salary for each of the six members of the School Committee.

Raises for the mayor and city councillors were last approved in May 2014. At that time, councillors approved increasing the mayor's salary from $122,474 to $150,000 and their own salaries by $5,000 to $22,500 each. Koch, who introduced the 2014 raises, had sought a $160,000 salary for his own position, but councillors cut that amount by $10,000. Members of the School Committee did not receive raises then.

The 2014 raises were based on recommendations made by a five-person committee Koch assembled in 2013 to review salaries for elected officials, department heads and other non-union employees.

In a recent interview, Koch said salaries for elected officials would be reviewed this year.

"I'm going to look at it. I don't know whether we should just make that part of the budget discussion or do it differently, but it is something I am going to look at," he replied when asked about raises for himself and the nine city councillors.

Koch said members of the school board could also be getting a raise this time around.

"The School Committee didn't get anything the last time for an increase, so they're overdue for a boost anyway," he said.

"Yeah, we're looking at it. I think you have to maintain that stuff."

As part of the discussion, Koch said he would consider tying the salaries for elected officials to the cost-of-living index, which would mean officials would no longer be voting on their own salaries.

"It's something we would have to look at – legally, what we can do, what our options?" Koch said when asked about tying salaries to the cost-of-living index. "Do we tie it into an ordinance? Do we tie it into whatever the unions get?"

"The problem with the way we do it, we took some public guff last time, but another five or six years go by and you fall behind, and it has got to be addressed. I saw the town of Westwood was paying their town manager $185,000. Dave Murphy was at $200,000 [in] Randolph. Nobody likes to talk about that stuff," Koch added. (Murphy left his job as town manager in Randolph to become Quincy's commissioner of natural resources.)

"The other irony of all this that's amazing to me – and again, it's awkward, because we're talking about me – but the mayor and the CEO of the city is very unique. It's 24-7," Koch continued.

"Town managers go home...They are not out nights and weekends, other than the selectman meetings. Yet, the public doesn't have a problem paying that person x amount. The minute you talk about an elected person getting a raise, everyone goes out of their minds. It's mind boggling to me. It is what it is."

"Look, if I was independently wealthy, I'd do the job for nothing. I love what I do, but I have a family. Everyone deserves a raise. It's awkward for me to talk about it, but we will be looking at it this year in some way."

Quincy voters approved increasing the mayoral term from two to four years in a 2013 referendum, Koch, who first took office in 2008, in 2015 became the first mayor in the city's history elected to a four-year term and was re-elected again last year.

In the recent interview, Koch said he would lean towards approving a four-year term for city councillors if councillors sought to move from two- to four-year terms.

"I think that is a discussion worth having publicly without having to do a ballot question," he said when asked about four-year terms for councillors.

"I look at the numbers on voter turnout, and local elections, it continues to drop. If there is no mayor's race, the numbers really drop. If that few people are coming out to vote, does it make sense?"

"School Committee forever has a had a four-year term. They are staggered, but they have a four-year term. I'm open to see a legislative route to make the council a four-year term, but they've got to come to some agreement first. I'm not going to be in a position to tell them what they should do or not do. If the council passed a resolve in support of going to a home rule petition to make the City Council a four-year term, I would probably support it based on my observations – how quickly time goes and the way voter turnout is going. It continues to decline."

School committee members are elected to staggered four-year terms, meaning three of the body's six mem-

Councillors Seek Residential Tax Exemption

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal now pending before the City Council would give Quincy residents who own and reside in their own homes a break on property taxes.

Council President Nina Liang and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci on Jan. 21 introduced an ordinance to accept the portion of state law authorizing the residential property tax exemption. Liang and Palmucci had introduced the same legislation last June, but no action was taken on it before the council's term expired at the end of the year.

If approved, the legislation would grant those who own and occupy their homes in the city a property tax exemption of up to 35 percent of the average assessed value for class one residential properties. The council would determine the level of the exemption during its review of the proposal.

Liang said she would work to create a residential property tax exemption when she was elected council president earlier this month. At the time, she said all residents should be able to benefit from development that has taken place throughout the city.

"Our city has seen and continues to see unprecedented development, not only in the downtown but within our neighborhoods," Liang said in her Jan. 6 remarks. "Too much of this growth rests on Quincy homeowners shouldering the burden and costs associated with development. That is why I am committed to continuing to fight and working to create a residential property tax exemption."

"We will hold public hearings on this issue, bring in experts, and find a way to continue expanding the benefit of development to every resident in Quincy," she added then.

Liang and Palmucci's bill was referred to the ordinance committee for consideration at future meeting. Councillor Anne Mahoney, the committee's chairwoman, said the council would take the opportunity to learn more about the possible exemption.

"This is an opportunity to have a discussion about a residential property tax exemption, at least learn the values going forward with all the new development that is happening here in the city of Quincy," Mahoney said at the Jan. 21 meeting.

Bike Maintenance Class

A bicycle education class geared towards maintenance will be held Wednesday, Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The Feb. 5 class is the third in a series of four bike education classes. Attendees learn about bicycle safety, maintenance and more in this series of bike education classes offered in partnership with QuinCycles.

The last two classes in this series will be hands on. Active participation in the hands' on classes will be limited and registration is strongly encouraged. Observing is always welcome, if all the active seats have been filled.

The Feb. 5th class, will provide hands-on instruction on how to maintain tires and air pressure, how to check and adjust your brakes, and how and when to clean your chain. This class is not for diagnosing or repairing major fixes, but for helping you learn to know how to keep your functioning bike in riding condition.

A limited number of attendees are invited to bring their bike for a personalized experience.

The final class in this series will be: Fix a Flat, Wednesday, March 4 at 7 p.m.

These free classes will be taught by a League of American Bicyclists certified instructor and are co-sponsored by:

The Mayor's Bicycle Commission, The Quincy Planning and Community Development Department, The Quincy Traffic Parking, Alarm, and Lighting Department, QuinCycles and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Registration is strongly encouraged to ensure the right number of handouts (and pizza).

AMAC: It's Not Too Late To Take Precautions Against The Flu

The flu can be uncomfortable, at best, but it can also be deadly. According to the Centers for Disease Control [CDC] so far this season more than 13 million people have been sick with the flu, at least 5,900,000 people have been to the doctor because of the flu, more than 120,000 people have been hospitalized and more than 6,600 have died.

Dan Weber, president of the senior advocacy organization, the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC], is advising its membership and older Americans, at large, to get a flu shot if you haven't already done so.

"It's not too late. The flu season is not over yet and the CDC says it can last for several more months," Weber warns. He points out that 53 percent of flu victims are 65 years old or older, noting that Medicare covers 100 percent of the cost.

"Even if your physician does not take Medicare, there are alternatives. Most drug stores, particularly the major pharmacy chains, including CVS, Walgreens and Rite Aid, offer Medicare-covered flu shots. And, free or low-cost shots are available at local clinics and public health facilities."

Weber adds, if you or someone in your family does come down with the flu, take precautions by following guidelines recommended by the CDC:

In addition to vaccination and appropriate use of antiviral drugs, CDC recommends everyday preventive actions to help stop the spread of germs.

• If you are sick with flu-like illness, stay home for at least 24 hours after your fever is gone except to get medical care or for other necessities.

• Cover your nose and mouth with a tissue when you cough or sneeze and wash your hands often with soap and water.

• Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth as germs spread this way.

• Clean and disinfect surfaces and objects that may be contaminated with germs like flu.

Scam Alert: 'Expiring License' Scam Tricks Microsoft Windows Users

By BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU

Microsoft announced that they are no longer providing technical assistance, software updates, or bug fixes for Windows 7. It's big news for users of the popular operating system. The announcement is giving scammers an opportunity to confuse Windows users into paying to update their "expiring Windows license" - whether they need to or not, according to recent BBB Scam Tracker reports.

How the Scam Works

You receive a call from someone who claims to be a concerned Microsoft employee. They explain that you need to upgrade your operating system if you want your computer to keep working. The caller may say that you need to upgrade from Windows 7 to Windows 10, or simply that your Windows license is expiring.

The caller may seem friendly and helpful, but they are far from it. They may convince you to pay yearly fees (that don't exist) or request remote access to your computer under the guise of installing software. If you pay the fees, you could lose hundreds of dollars. But if you allow the scammer access to your computer, your secure personal information, such as banking details and login credentials, can be compromised. This puts you at risk for identity theft.

How to Protect Yourself from Tech Scams

• Don't trust unsolicited callers. Reputable companies don't call consumers without their permission.

• Double check unusual claims. If someone calls you claiming you have a problem you had no idea existed, don't take their word for it. Hang up and do some research before you accept any help. In the BBB Scam Tracker reports, victims report that they were already using Windows 10 when they got a call claiming they needed to upgrade.

• Never allow a stranger remote access to your computer. If you have a genuine tech problem, get help from a reputable company or individual.

• Get tech information straight from the source. If your computer runs Windows, for example, find out about updates, new operating systems, and tech support directly from Microsoft. Double check you are on the official website or calling the real support line before you share personal information or pay any money.

For More Information

We checked with Microsoft, and they confirm that the company never reaches out to offer support by phone or pop-up on your computer screen. All support requests are initiated by customers. Microsoft won't reimburse scam victims for money or gift cards given to scammers, but they are happy to check over your computer to make sure any viruses or malware have been removed.

For more information, see the BBB.org/TechSupportScam tips. BBB's research on why some people are more susceptible to scams is available at BBB.org/Exposed-ToScams.

If you've been the victim of a scam, whether you've lost money, report it at BBB.org/ScamTracker. Your report can help others stay alert and informed and avoid similar scams.

dents are always given a hot lunch. This codifies the processes that we have."

The food service policy states that the school committee "is committed to providing students with healthy, nutritious meals each day so they can focus on school work while also maintaining the financial integrity of meal programs and minimizing any impact on students with meal charges."

The policy adds, "However, unpaid meal charges can place a financial burden on the school district as food services is a self-supporting entity within the district."

Parents and guardians are responsible for their child's meal payments. Accounts may be set up to cover the cost of meals. When a student's account balance reaches zero and enters the negative, the policy states that the student would not be allowed to purchase a la carte items such as a second entrée, snack, ice cream, or additional beverage. The student, however, would be allowed to take a meal that would be charged to the account at the standard lunch rate.

Parents who have a financial hardship can work out payment options with the food service department. Notices of low or deficit balances will be sent to parents. There is an option for parents to pay for meals in advance.

Should a parent fail to keep an account current, the matter could be referred to the superintendent's office. If a student is consistently without meal money, the administration could step in and take necessary action.

Students whose families receive food stamps or transitional assistance are eligible for free meals and may be automatically approved through direct certification by the Massachusetts Department of Education and Transitional Assistance. Applications for the Free and Reduced Meal Assistance program may be submitted anytime during the school year.

All school districts, including Quincy, are required to comply with the National School Lunch Program. This is a federally assisted meal program operating in nearly 95,000 public and nonprofit private schools and residential child care institutions, according to Benefits.gov. It provides nutritionally balanced, low-cost or free lunches to more than 26 million children each school day. Established under the National School Lunch Act, signed by President Harry Truman in 1946, the program celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1996. More than 30 million students are served under the program nationwide.

In addition to lunch, Quincy offers a school breakfast program as well as programs for after school snacks and summer meals. Breakfast is served 15 minutes before school starts at all schools and 30 minutes after the first bell at Lincoln-Hancock, Parker, Snug Harbor, and Wollaston elementary schools and Broad Meadows and South-West middle schools.

The After School Snack Program provides free snacks to elementary and middle schools students participating in certain district-sponsored afterschool programs. The Summer Food Service Program for Children offers lunch and snacks during summer school vacation at designated sites.

In another matter, during the committee's Inspire Quincy segment, a video was presented detailing the elementary schools' Fantasy Reading League. At Merrymount School, grade five students were divided up into 13 teams and competed in various reading challenges and received points upon completion. Snug Harbor students went on a field trip to study river minerals and habitats. The program helps promote science, math, and reading and in the words of one student, "pushes me to a different level."

Scenes From Yesterday

A YOUNG WOMAN mailed this 1906 postcard from Arnold Street in Quincy Point with a little note to a friend in New Bedford. At the time Quincy High School was located in the former Central Middle School on the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road. That building has since been converted to condominiums. The young woman pictured here was probably an ice hockey cheerleader for the high school team that played their hockey games just behind the school when Butlers Pond was frozen.

READERS FORUM

Quincy Climate Action Network Responds To Palmucci

Dear Editor,
In his shameless attack on a group of concerned Quincy citizens (letters, Jan. 23), Councillor Brian Palmucci accuses Quincy Climate Action Network of making up facts in our push to amend the city's plastic bag ban, though he conveniently neglects to identify any made-up facts we have disseminated.

We suggest that the councillor check his own facts. For example, in his letter, at the city council meeting where the ban was passed, and in emails between the councillor and QCAN members, he has repeatedly asserted that QCAN members want an outright "ban" on paper shopping bags. In fact, we are calling for a modest charge on paper bags, of a kind that's been enacted in Boston, Cambridge, and several whole states, including California, Oregon, Vermont, and Maine as a way to encourage the adoption of reusable shopping bags. It's a position we have argued in two recent letters to the Sun, numerous emails to the councillor, and an oral presentation during a city council forum that the councillor attended. Thus, we wonder why he persists in misrepresenting our position. Is he doing it in order to portray us as extremists, as he does in his letter to the Sun?

Further, without citing any source, the councillor writes in his letter that "paper bags ... consume less than one-third of the energy to produce than its [sic] alternatives." Back in October, we provided the councillor with the gold-standard study of the topic, by the UK Environment Agency (<http://bit.ly/ukbagstudy>). If he went back and looked at that study, he would discover that he has his ratio backwards. In fact, the manufacture and use of paper bags causes four times the greenhouse gas pollution of single-use plastic bags, along with increased toxic emissions associated with the manufacture of paper. This stands to reason when you consider the energy expended in growing and harvesting trees, transporting wood to the paper mill, manufacturing paper, and trucking paper bags, which far outweigh the plastic alternative, to the retail outlet.

The UK study also shows that, contrary to Mr. Palmucci's letter, heavy duty reusable shopping bags of the kind being sold for 10 cents each at the local Stop and Shop need be reused only once to help reduce greenhouse gas pollution (if the alternative is paper bags) and only three times (if the alternative is single-use plastic bags).

The councillor argues, with justice, that single use plastic shopping bags can severely harm wildlife, but we would ask him to consider the harm to wildlife being done by out-of-control climate change. Perhaps he hasn't heard about the billion koalas, kangaroos, and other wild animals burned to death or starved in Australia in the last few months, just to cite a dramatic instance, or the unprecedented rate of species extinction we have seen in recent years. It may also not have occurred to him that harvesting trees to make paper bags tends to destroy wildlife habitat.

In short, we agree that single-use plastic bags ought to be banned, but if the ban only pushes Quincy shoppers to substitute paper bags for plastic, we will have traded one problem for another. Thus, QCAN continues to urge the council to add a 5 or 10 cent per bag charge to the current ban.

In QCAN's seven-plus years of existence, we've both praised and criticized government actions according to their effect on climate. Mr. Palmucci, of course, is free to attack us in whatever terms he chooses, but we plan to continue speaking our minds.

Sincerely,
David Reich

Board Chair, Quincy Climate Action Network

QHS Class of 1969 Celebrates 50th High School Reunion

On Oct. 5, 2019, the QHS Class of 1969, with 180 attendees, raised $3,800 during their 50th class reunion and donated it to the Quincy Public Schools Student Support Fund.

This fund assists all Quincy students in need, particularly students who may be experiencing homelessness, or those experiencing other significant hardships. On behalf of the Reunion Committee, Donald Uvanitte was instrumental in looking into this worthwhile program.

The generosity will supply clothing, footwear, toiletries, and school supplies for students throughout Quincy Public Schools from preschool to 12th grade. The Committee hopes that our generosity and empathy for the students will help them to prosper both in and out of school.

Delayed Tax Rate Costly To City

By next May, the city of Quincy will have paid $901,240 in interest on money borrowed and reborrowed to keep the municipal government operating during the long delay between the 1980 tax rate.

Between July 6, at the start of the fiscal year, and Dec. 3, three weeks before the tax rate was set, the city borrowed $28 million on tax anticipation notes (T.A.N.'s). The interest: $558,880.

In November, when most of the T.A.N.'s matured, the city was still without income from the collections, so $20 million in notes had to be renewed. The interest: $250,434.

In January, the city was forced to renew $12 million in T.A.N.'s that had already been renewed once. The interest: $91,926.

City Treasurer-Collector Robert E. Foy III will present a picture of the city's finances to the City Council at the request of Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia.

HEARING SET FOR SUIT ON TEACHERS' RAISES

A Feb. 11 hearing date has been set on teachers' union suit seeking to order Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to fund raises with the teachers.

The raises, totaling about $1.1 million were negotiated between the Quincy Education Association (QEA) and the School Committee in December. A supplemental budget request for those raises, sent to Tobin by the school committee, has never been passed on to the city council for appropriation.

Mayor Tobin, noting that the tax rate has been sent, has claimed no further money can be appropriated by the council this fiscal year.

This new program combines science and stories for a new type of storytime. Join us after school for one hour of stories and science. Children will hear stories involving science topics, then explore those topics through activities and experiments. No registration is required for this program.

Get Crafty

Stop by the children's room on Friday mornings any time from 10-12 to make a simple craft. Each week will feature a different theme, and you are welcome to get crazy creative. This month we'll be crafting Valentines on the 7th and 14th, Mardi Gras masks on the 21st and castles on the 28th.

This program is for all ages with an adult's help.

LEGO Challenge @ Wollaston

Are you up for the LEGO Challenge? Join us on the 2nd Saturday of each month (Feb. 8th) at the Wollaston Branch Library any time from 9:30-11:30 a.m. when we will have a new challenge to tackle and plenty of LEGO to do it. Can you build a vehicle using only one color of brick? How tall a tower can you make? Can you work with someone else to build a city? Join us and see what you can build. This program is for children ages 5 and older.

Saturday Storytime

Join children's librarian Cathy deVeer at the Main Library on Saturday, Feb.

8th at 10 a.m. for a Storytime full of stories, songs and more about Pets.

This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult. No registration required.

Valentine's Card Making

Join us on Tuesday, Feb. 11th at 3 p.m. for our annual Valentine's Day tradition of exchanging cards with Town Brook House! Share your love by making a Valentine's card for one of the senior residents at Town Brook House, and you'll receive one in return!

You can celebrate those you love and show them you care by making cards for them too.

This program is for all ages.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, Feb. 13th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

Explore shapes and patterns this month by sorting shapes, matching patterns, and making pictures using shape blocks.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets at 7 p.m. on the 2nd Thursday of each month.

On Feb. 13th we will be discussing "The Sand Warrior" by Mark Siegel.

The Five Worlds are on the brink of extinction unless five ancient and mysterious beacons are lit. When war erupts, three unlikely heroes will discover there's more to themselves—and more to their worlds—than meets the eye. When these three kids are forced to team up on an epic quest, it will take not one, not two, but 5

WORLDS to contain all the magic and adventure!

Stop by the children's room to pick up a copy of the book to read before the meeting.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets at 7 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. This month we'll be meeting on Feb. 11th.

This month we will be discussing Award Winners. Each year the American Library Association gives out many different awards to authors and illustrators. The most well-known children's literature awards are the Newbery and Caldecott medals, but those aren't the only ones. This month we'll be reading books that have won the Newbery, Caldecott, Coretta Scott King, Batchelder, Sibert, Schneider, and Belpre awards in the past several years. Pick an award winner and decide for yourself if you think it deserved to win.

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out what we'll be reading next month and join us then.

Pumpkin Puppets for ages 3 and up

Join us on Saturday, Feb. 15th at 10 a.m. for a puppet show featuring two classic tales, "The Three Billy Goats Gruff" and "The Lion and the Mouse."

Join John McDounough and the Pumpkin Puppets, a cast of colorful puppet characters, for a show full of audience participation, live voices and sound effects and fast paced scripts that not only entertain, but stimulate children's imagination and creativity.

In "Three Billy Goats Gruff," the quick-witted billy goats outsmart the troll, but the troll isn't really mean—he's just green, has a snaggletooth, and lives under a bridge. In "The Lion and the Mouse," two unlikely friends—one very big and one very small—learn to help each other to solve their problems. Both tales are told with colorful, friendly hand puppets and feature lots of audience participation.

This program is for children ages 3 and older accompanied by an adult.

Will Scola Receives Honors At Trinity College

Will Francis Scola of Quincy was awarded Faculty Honors for the fall semester at Trinity College in Hartford, CT.

Children's Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore - Toy Story 4

Join us on Tuesday, Feb. 18th at 10 a.m. at the Adams Shore Branch for a showing of "Toy Story 4."

Woody, Buzz Lightyear and the rest of the gang embark on a road trip with Bonnie and a new toy named Forky. The adventurous journey turns into an unexpected reunion as Woody's slight detour leads him to his long-lost friend Bo Peep. As Woody and Bo discuss the old days, they soon start to realize that they're two worlds apart when it comes to what they want from life as a toy.

Rated G Runtime 100 min.

Writing Center for ages 18 months and older

Stop by the Children's Room from 10 - 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 18th and Thursday, Feb. 20th and try out our new Writing Center.

Parents are encouraged to work with their children in tracing letters and shapes and playing games to practice pre-writing and early writing skills.

Various activities will be available suitable for children ages 18 months to school age.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 to 15 are invited to join us on Tuesday, Feb. 18th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play. If this is your first time joining the group please arrive early, about 6:45 p.m., to create your character so we'll be ready to play when everyone else arrives.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Preschool Discovery @ Adams Shore

Drop by the Adams Shore Library with your preschooler, ages 3-5, any time between 3 and 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 19th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

Explore shapes and patterns this month by sorting shapes, matching patterns, and making pictures using shape blocks.

Pokemon Club

Do you want to catch 'em all? Join other Pokemon fans at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 19th as we trade cards, watch movies, and enjoy all things Pokemon! You are welcome to bring any handheld Pokemon games to battle and trade as well.

For all ages, no registration required.

Middle School TAG

Middle schoolers unite! This is your opportunity to help direct programs and services for you and your peers. Our Middle School Teen Advisory Group will meet on the 3rd Wednesday of every month to discuss what's most important to you. Help us to plan the events that YOU want to see happen at the library. Snacks will be provided.

Join us on Wednesday, Feb. 19th from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in the large meeting room on the ground floor.

Hour of Code- for ages 7-9

Ever wanted to learn how to code but don't know where to start?

Join us on Thursday, Feb. 20th at 3 p.m. in the children's room where we will use activities from the Hour of Code website to learn coding using Scratch and other programs.

Laptops and desktops will be provided on a first-come-first-serve basis.

This program is for ages 7-9 and is really not suitable for younger children as participants must be able to read the instructions on the coding blocks.

Science Saturday - Weather Science

Join us at the Main Library for an exploration of Weather and Ice on Saturday, Feb. 22nd from 10 - 11 a.m.

Explore weather science this month! Learn about ice, ice crystals, and snow by examining ice cubes and trying to melt them and making your own snowflakes. Use wind power to blow objects around. Make a rainstorm in a jar, learn how to identify different clouds, learn how sundials work and more!

This interactive drop-in program is recommended for children ages 3 and older and their families.

Join us on the fourth Saturday of each month as we explore different science topics.

All programs sponsored and supported by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Rehearsal Feb. 5 For ENC Symphonic Winds

The Symphonic Winds at Eastern Nazarene College, a community-based concert band, will soon begin its 17th winter/spring season under the direction of Professor Stephen Bell.

The ensemble is comprised not only of ENC college students, but area community members and qualified high school students. Rehearsals are held on Wednesday evenings at the Cove Fine Arts Center on Wendell Avenue beginning at 6:30 p.m. The first rehearsal is set for Feb. 5.

The ensemble is open to all musicians, who want to enjoy the experience of working together to produce wonderful music.

Players come from many of the surrounding towns: Weymouth, Hanover, Marshfield, Braintree, Scituate, Milton, Canton, Bridgewater, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and Quincy.

The program for the Symphonic Winds includes wide varieties and styles of music. As an educator, Professor Bell chooses literature that will challenge the players and yet provide a great listening experience for concert attendees.

Rehearsals are held weekly in the second floor music room of the Cove Fine Arts Building from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. There is a spring concert held in April before the ensemble performs for commencement festivities in May.

If you or anyone you know is interested in becoming a member of this ensemble, contact the ENC Music Department secretary, Linda Pestilli at 617-745-3715, or send an email directly to Professor Stephen Bell at scbell1@comcast.net.

Indicate what instrument(s) you play and a brief description of your ability level. Music will be provided for you at the first rehearsal. There is a particular need for clarinet and trombone. Percussionists who read music are also encouraged to join.

AAA High School Video Contest To Combat Marijuana-Impaired Driving

AAA Northeast invites high school students living in AAA Northeast territory to participate in the 2020 Traffic Safety Video Contest and create a :30 second Public Service Announcement (PSA)-style video to educate motorists of any age on the risks of marijuana-impaired driving.

The grand prize winner will be awarded $5,000.

Contest rules can be found at AAA.com/VideoContest. Video entries should be submitted via www.AAA.com/VideoContest by midnight on April 13.

The public is invited to view students' submissions and "like" their favorite video on that website between April 20-30th. The top five videos, determined by the number of "likes", will be posted to AAA Northeast's Instagram account @AAANortheast on May 1st and the video receiving the most "likes" on Instagram by May 4th will be the grand prize winner. The Grand Prize Winner will be announced May 5th and will win $5,000.

The contest's goal is to reinforce to young and upcoming drivers that consuming marijuana in any form, including vaping THC, will impact and impair driving ability. Research demonstrates that driving high more than doubles crash risk.

"While the contest is for high school students, the message is relevant for drivers of all ages," said AAA spokesperson Diana Imondi. "Marijuana legalization and decriminalization in many states has led to an attitudinal shift about the drug. Drivers need to understand that driving under the influence of THC can increase crash risk up to 200 percent. Visual media is an engaging way of spreading awareness about important traffic safety issues; AAA is able to offer a platform for students to educate others on the dangers of impaired driving," Imondi added.

AAA Northeast also provides direct education to students in high school health classes through the Shifting Gears: The Blunt Truth About Marijuana & Driving program. This lesson, designed for high school students and endorsed by Brown University's School of Public Health, highlights the effects of marijuana use on the teenage brain, with a particular focus on the dangers of drugged driving.

AAA believes that education about marijuana-impaired driving designed and created by students can be effective in preventing crashes. Visit www.AAA.com/ShiftingGears to learn about AAA's free educational program for high schoolers on marijuana impaired driving.

Jillian Taylor Selected For UMass Science Program

The Integrated Concentration in Science (iCons) program at the University of Massachusetts Amherst has announced that Jillian N. Taylor of Quincy is one of 60 undergraduate students selected for its highly competitive collaborative science degree program.

More than 120 first-year and sophomore students applied for one of the coveted iCons spots through a competitive process open to roughly 5,000 undergraduate students majoring in science, technology, engineering or math (STEM). The current iCons cohort, the tenth to participate, will graduate the program in 2023.

The UMass Amherst College of Natural Sciences' iCons program builds on students' course of study by providing them with further skills needed to enter the modern scientific workforce. In iCons, students from a variety of STEM majors collaborate in discipline-diverse teams to identify and study innovative solutions to global problems making headlines today, such as climate change and antibiotic resistance.

WHAT'S COOKING

with
Marie & Susie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Tortellini Sausage Alfredo

By MARIE

Most of us who enjoy cooking do not enjoy the clean-up afterward and that is one of the reasons I always try and find one-pan entrees and today's recipe is just that.

Ingredients:

1-pound Sausage - Italian, hot or sweet
½ pound cheese tortellini

For Alfredo Sauce:

1 stick unsalted butter
¾ cup grated parmesan cheese
1 pint of heavy cream

Cook the sausage any way you want, I usually pierce them and then cook them on a cookie sheet in the oven.

When all cooked, set aside to cool. When cooled cut in slices.

Cook the tortellini according to package directions. Put sausage back in pan.

Add the Alfredo sauce on top (recipe for Alfredo sauce is below), heat on low for a few minutes.

Drain cooked tortellini and place in pan with sausage and Alfredo sauce. Stir and heat through. Top with more parmesan cheese when serving.

Alfredo Sauce Directions:

Melt butter in saucepan.

Add parmesan cheese and mix until this forms a roux.

Add cream slowly.

Heat and stir on low until smooth and done.

Paleo Banana Muffins

By SUSIE

Here is one of my recipes that I hope you will make over the winter when you want something sweet but healthy!

There is nothing like the smell of baked goods straight from the oven and banana bread is one of those recipes that is so easy and good for you. Regular banana bread/muffins calls for white flour and sugar. Both No No's for those of you who are health conscious. If you substitute one thing for another, you can eat muffins and breads and things more often and not just as a "treat."

This banana bread recipe is a Paleo friendly recipe. It calls for almond flour and coconut flour rather than wheat flour. That means it is GRAIN FREE as well. Very low carbohydrate, less inflammatory while higher in protein.

Almond and coconut flour contain protein and fiber as well as important nutrients like vitamin E and manganese, copper, magnesium, and iron (combined). Almond flour has more fat while coconut flour has a bit more carbohydrates. Both are two different flours, but can be used from baking to binding meatballs and thickening sauces.

I use Honeyville brand Almond flour since it is fluffy and less oily. Coconut flours are all pretty much the same, just make sure you get finely ground.

PALEO BANANA MUFFINS

3 bananas (ripe)
3 large eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 tablespoon raw honey or Maple Syrup
3 Tablespoons butter, ghee, or organic shortening
1 1/2 cups blanched almond flour
2 tablespoons coconut flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon sea salt

Place bananas, eggs, vanilla, and honey or syrup in blender and mix well. (I find this so much easier than mashing it all.)

In a separate bowl now, put in flours, salt and soda. Combine the liquid into the bowl and mix until just combined. Don't over mix.

Place liners in muffin tins and spoon batter into 12 tins.

Bake until done at 350 for about 15-18 minutes. Do not over bake! Enjoy!

In Memory Of Aprons

By MARIE

Most of us who wear aprons wear them so we will not soil or stain our clothes while cooking. Recently, my friend Catherine from my Baking Club, shared a story with me about how wearing aprons used to be.

The principle use of grandma's apron was to protect the dress underneath because she only had a few. It was easier to wash aprons than dresses and the apron used less material and serviced as a potholder for removing hot pans from the oven.

The apron was wonderful for drying children's tears and, on occasion, the apron was even used for cleaning out dirty ears. From the chicken coop the apron was used for carrying eggs, fussy chicks and sometimes half hatched eggs to be finished in the warming oven.

When company came those aprons were ideal hiding places for shy kids. When the weather was cold grandma wrapped the apron around her arms. Those big old aprons wiped many a perspiring brow over the hot wood stove.

Chips and kindling wood were brought into the kitchen in that apron from the garden the apron carried all sorts of vegetables. After the peas had been shelled the apron carried out the hulls.

In the fall, the apron was used to bring in apples that had fallen from the trees. When unexpected company drove up the road it was surprising how much furniture that old apron could dust in a matter of seconds. When dinner was ready grandma would walk out on to the porch, waived her apron and the men knew it was time to come in from the fields to dinner.

It will be a long time before someone invents something that will replace the old-time apron. Remember grandma used to set her hot baked apple pies on the windowsill to cool. Her granddaughters set theirs on the windowsills to thaw. They could go crazy trying to figure out how many germs were that apron. I never caught anything from an apron...BUT LOVE!

Quincy Man Training For Boston Marathon To Support Fight Against Alzheimer's

A Quincy man is undergoing training to take on the 2020 Boston Marathon as part of Team End Alz, running to accomplish more than just the feat of completing the prestigious 26.2 mile race.

Frank Neely will be joining 29 other teammates as they endure the course on April 20, 2020 to fundraise and raise awareness for the Alzheimer's Association, Massachusetts/New Hampshire Chapter.

The Team End Alz program began in 2001 when a few dedicated athletes participated in the Boston Marathon on behalf of the Alzheimer's Association. The program has grown over the past 17 years, raising over $7.5 million since inception. Last year alone, the 2019 Boston Marathon Team raised over $407,000.

With less than three months until the race, Neely has begun intensive training to run the marathon on behalf of his mother, Barbara, who is currently living with the disease at age 91. Neely will also be running in memory of his aunt, Mary, who previously passed away from Alzheimer's in 2009. This won't be his first time taking on the Boston Marathon, however. Neely said he first ran the course back in 2007 with the immense support of his mother.

"During the marathon, as I was running into Wellesley Center there were so many people I was worried that I would miss her. But sure enough, as I was turning a curve there was my mom all decked out, cheering and holding a contraption she made using an old broomstick covered in jingle-bells and streamers of all sizes. She was not to be missed," said Neely. "Her excitement and pride for me was infectious. I nearly cried right there on the course. It's that version of my mom I will be running for come April."

So far, Neely has raised $3,576 of his $10,000 fundraising goal. Funds raised by Team End Alz runners directly supports the mission of the Alzheimer's Association; to eliminate Alzheimer's disease through the advancement of research and to provide care and support for all affected.

Mayor, Councillors, School Members Could Get Raises

bers are elected every two years; the mayor also serves on the board as its chairman.

Koch said increasing city councillors' terms to four years would likely mean the end of staggered school board terms.

"I think you have to deal with that at the same time," he said.

In addition, Koch said it is time to look at making changes to the city's charter to reflect changes in government since it was approved. The charter, for instance, requires one-year terms for most mayoral appointees.

"The other thing we've got to do at some point - I've talked about it before, it's always on the back burner because there is always something else - we need to make some charter adjustments anyway," Koch said.

"Once the voters decided to make the mayor a four-year term, there is process stuff that ought to be changed. Having a yearly appointee schedule now is kind of foolish, but it's the way the charter is written.

"There are those things that should be changed. Maybe we should be putting all of this together into one and submitting something to the council that includes a lot of these updates and changes."

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning: Signs, Symptoms

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Carbon monoxide poisoning occurs when carbon monoxide builds up in your bloodstream. When an excess of carbon monoxide is in the air, your body replaces the oxygen in your red blood cells with carbon monoxide. This can lead to serious tissue damage, or even death.

Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas produced by burning gasoline, wood, propane, charcoal or other fuel. Improperly ventilated appliances and engines, especially in a tightly sealed or enclosed space, may permit the carbon monoxide to accumulate to hazardous levels.

If you think you or someone you're with may have carbon monoxide poisoning, get into fresh air and seek emergency medical care immediately.

The signs and symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning may include:

- Dull headache
- Weakness
- Dizziness
- Nausea or vomiting
- Shortness of breath
- Confusion
- Blurred vision
- Loss of consciousness

Carbon monoxide poisoning can be particularly dangerous for those who are asleep or intoxicated. People may have permanent brain damage or even die before anyone recognizes that there's a problem.

The warning signs of carbon monoxide poisoning can be subtle. But the condition is a life-threatening medical emergency. Carbon monoxide poisoning is caused by inhaling combustion fumes. When too much carbon monoxide is in the air you're breathing, your body substitutes carbon monoxide for the oxygen in your red blood cells. This prevents oxygen from reaching your tissues and organs.

Numerous fuel-burning appliances and engines produce carbon monoxide. The amount of carbon monoxide produced by these sources usually isn't cause for apprehension. But if they're used in a closed or partially closed space, such as cooking with a charcoal grill indoors, for example, then the carbon monoxide can build up to treacherous levels. Smoke inhalation during a fire also can cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

Exposure to carbon monoxide may be particularly dangerous for:

- Unborn babies. Fetal blood cells take up carbon monoxide more readily than adult blood cells do. This makes unborn babies more vulnerable to harm from carbon monoxide poisoning.
- Children. Young children take breaths more frequently than adults do, which may make them more susceptible to carbon monoxide poisoning.

• Older adults. Older people who experience carbon monoxide poisoning may be more prone to develop brain damage.

• People who have chronic heart disease. People with a history of anemia and respiratory problems also are more likely to get sick from exposure to carbon monoxide.

• Those in whom carbon monoxide poisoning leads to unconsciousness. Loss of consciousness indicates more critical exposure.

Depending on the degree and length of time of exposure, carbon monoxide poisoning can cause:

- Permanent brain damage
- Damage to your heart, possibly leading to life-threatening cardiac complications
- Fetal death or miscarriage
- Death

Simple safeguards can help avoid carbon monoxide poisoning:

- Install carbon monoxide detectors. Install one in the hallway outside of each sleeping area in your home. Check the batteries every time you check your smoke detector batteries — at least twice a year. If the alarm sounds, leave the house and call 911 or the fire department. Carbon monoxide detectors are also available and recommended for motor homes and boats.
- Open the garage door before starting your car. Never leave your car running in your garage. Be particularly cautious if you have a garage that is attached or underneath your home. Leaving your car running in a space attached to the rest of your house is never safe, even with the garage door open. Have a mechanic check the exhaust system of your car or truck every year. A small leak in the exhaust system can lead to a build-up of CO inside the car.

• Use gas appliances as recommended. Never use a gas stove or oven to heat your home. Use portable gas camp stoves outdoors only. Use fuel-burning space heaters only when someone is awake to monitor them and doors or windows are open to provide fresh air. Don't run a generator in an enclosed space, such as the basement or garage.

• Keep your fuel-burning appliances and engines properly vented. These include:

- o Space heaters
- o Furnaces
- o Charcoal grills
- o Cooking ranges
- o Water heaters
- o Fireplaces
- o Portable generators

o Wood-burning stoves
o Car and truck engines
Inquire with your utility company about yearly checkups for all gas appliances, including your furnace.

• If you have a fireplace, keep it in good repair. Clean your fireplace chimney and flue every year.

• Keep vents and chimneys unblocked especially during remodeling. Check that they aren't covered by tarps or debris. Never patch a vent pipe with tape, gum, or something else. This kind of patch can make CO build up in your home, cabin, or camper.

• Make repairs before returning to the site of an incident. If carbon monoxide poisoning has occurred in your home, it's critical to find and repair the source of the carbon monoxide before you reside there again. Your local fire department or utility company may be able to assist you with this.

• Use caution when working with solvents in a closed area. Methylene chloride, a solvent traditionally found in paint and varnish removers, can break down into carbon monoxide when inhaled. Exposure to methylene chloride can cause carbon monoxide poisoning. When working with solvents at home, use them only outdoors or in well-ventilated areas. Carefully read the instructions and follow the safety precautions on the label.

RUTH JONES

• Be alert in the winter. Never run your engine if the vehicle is partially covered in snow. If the tailpipe is partially obstructed, exhaust may be redirected underneath the vehicle and enter the passenger compartment. Don't repeatedly start and stop your engine in an effort to stay warm. This can actually generate more carbon monoxide than just running it continuously.

Pay-And-Display Parking Launches Monday At Courthouse Lot

As part of a continued partnership with the City of Quincy to address parking management issues relating to the Quincy Center redevelopment project, Norfolk County and its County Commissioners have announced the upcoming launch of the County's new Pay-and-Display Parking Management program at the Quincy District Courthouse

Parking Lot, located at 1 Dennis Ryan Parkway.

Beginning on Monday, Feb. 3rd, parking will be available in the Quincy District Courthouse Parking Lot on a daily basis for $2 per hour between the hours of 5 a.m. to 11:59 p.m.

Parking passes can be purchased for the desired timeframe at any of the three pay kiosks in the Courthouse Parking Lot and displayed in the front windshield of a visitor's vehicle. Parking permits will be distributed to employees of the Quincy District Courthouse prior to implementation.

Daily Jury Duty parking passes will be made available in the Courthouse for jurors upon presentation of their Jury Notice. Jurors are asked to place their daily passes on their vehicle dashboard upon receipt.

Effective Feb. 3rd, there will be no Overnight Parking allowed in the Quincy District Courthouse Parking Lot. Those who currently park their vehicles in the Courthouse Parking Lot, including those on the Washington Street side of the lot, should make plans to park elsewhere in order to avoid being ticketed and/or towed.

Compliance with these new parking procedures will be regularly enforced with ticketing and fines.

Anyone with questions about the County's new courthouse parking program can call Mike Mullen or Bill Buckley in the Norfolk County Commissioners' Office at (781) 461-6105.

In Lieu Of Plastic, ISS Needs Reusable Bags

Food Pantry Seeks Reusable Bags For Packing Grocery Orders

Interfaith Social Services is seeking donations of reusable bags for use in their food pantry.

"When we learned of Quincy's upcoming single-use plastic bag ban (effective March 1), we immediately started conversations in our food pantry," said Rick Doane, Interfaith's executive director. "We distribute more than 50,000 bags of groceries each year, and that adds up to a lot of plastic and paper bags."

Interfaith Social Services provides a safety net for South Shore families that need food, housing assistance or mental health counseling. Interfaith's food pantry distributes more than 700,000 pounds of food each year.

"Since the fall, we've been encouraging our food pantry clients to bring reusable bags on each visit," said Doane. "We hope that as more and more towns ban plastic bags, people will become accustomed to using reusable bags everywhere they go. Unfortunately, we don't have the funds to purchase reusable bags for our clients, so we hope that local business and organizations will consider donating their extra promotional bags so that we can go plastic and paper bag free in our pan-

Businesses and individuals are encouraged to donate bags during Interfaith's business hours, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. -3:30 p.m.

and until 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Smaller amounts of bags can be delivered off-hours to the donation bin around back of the building, at 105 Adams

St. in Quincy.

Jennifer Manning Re-Elected Council Clerk Of Committees

By SCOTT JACKSON

At their first meeting of their new term, city councilors unanimously re-elected Jennifer Manning to serve as the clerk of committees for the next two years.

She was re-elected to the position on Jan. 21.

Manning has served as the clerk of committees since September 2014; she succeeded Jeanne Reardon, who had held that post from 1980 until her retirement in June of that year. Manning had previously worked as a clerk in the Municipal Finance Department, where she was responsible for processing payments.

Among other duties, the clerk of committees is responsible for helping to draft the agenda for each council meeting, assisting with scheduling of council and committee meetings, and recording each vote or other action taken by the council.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said it was an honor and privilege to nominate Manning for a new term as clerk of committees.

"Jen is proactive, professional and detailed. She watches all our backs," McCarthy said. "She knows everything in and out like she's been around for a very, very long time."

He also noted that Manning began working in the Municipal Finance Department on Jan. 22 ten years ago.

"Congratulations on ten glorious city years," McCarthy said. "Thank you very much."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, who was the council's president the past two years, said Manning helps ensure council meetings run seamlessly.

"Working very closely during my term in the council presidency, Jen was somebody that anticipated a lot of items before they became issues. She made sure that we as a city council were in a very good spot any time we walked into this room," Croall said.

"To the general public watching these meetings, I think they look like they flow pretty seamlessly, and it's not without the hard work from people like Jennifer Manning...we're very grateful and happy to have you on board."

Manning thanked the councillors for their support following the vote.

Dear Rusty: My birth date is 1947. My wife is 1950. We both took our Social Security years ago at age 62 due to health concerns because we questioned if we would live to age 78 to equalize the extra payout if we would have waited to age 66. Taking early at 62 may have been a mistake and I am wondering if there are any options available to maximize my and/or my wife's monthly payment with a restricted application or any other available options? My gross monthly is $946.60, and my wife's is $543.60 before the deduction for Medicare. Together our gross monthly is about equal to the per person individual average monthly payment of $1479. Signed: Regretful we took SS early.

Dear Regretful: I'm afraid the options for either you or your wife increasing your benefit at this point are extremely limited. You cannot file the restricted application you mentioned because that can only be done by someone applying for the first time (and who was born before 1/2/1954), and only by someone who has not yet reached age 70. Neither can you suspend your benefits to earn delayed retirement credits (DRCs) because DRCs are only earned up to age 70. Your wife has a very small window until she reaches 70 in March during which she could suspend her benefits, and by doing so immediately she could perhaps earn, at most, an additional 1% in DRCs (about $5 more per month). That leaves only two other things which could increase your benefits: 1) Annual Cost of Living Adjustments (COLAs) granted each year depending upon inflation, and 2) returning to work and having substantial current earnings which may replace the earnings in a lower-earning year in your lifetime work record (SS uses the highest earning 35 years over your lifetime to compute your benefit amount).

If you have some years in that 35-year history with no or very low earnings, working now could replace one or more of those years. I have no way of determining whether that is a possibility; you would need to get your lifetime earnings record from Social Security and see if that is possible by examining your earnings for each year over your lifetime. But remember, all early years of earnings are adjusted for inflation, so for example, $10,000 earned in 1990 would be equal to about $25,000 in today's dollars, and you'd need to earn more than the higher amount to have any effect on your benefit.

I wish I had better news for you, but the unfortunate reality is that once someone claims their Social Security, the benefit amount is quite fixed. Although it's possible to withdraw an application within 12 months of initial filing, and it's also possible to suspend benefits once FRA is reached, neither of those is available to you. And your wife only has a very short window to suspend her benefits, which will reach maximum when she reaches 70 in March. So, except for the COLA increases and returning to work options I've discussed above, I'm afraid you have no other opportunity to increase your Social Security benefit amounts.

Quincy Public Schools To Receive Boost In State Aid

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy Public Schools will be receiving a big hike in state aid this year under a new law that provides a boost in funding to school districts that have a high percentage of students who are low-income or English language learners.

"Both of these of which Quincy falls into those categories," said Quincy School Department Deputy Supt. Kevin Mulvey as he and the district's business director James Mullaney outlined the new state Student Opportunity Act and its impact on Quincy during the Jan. 22 school committee meeting. "The preliminary numbers we received today look very good."

Gov. Charlie Baker signed the measure into law in November that requires the state to spend $1.4 billion on Chapter 70 aid, $90 million for the special education Circuit Breaker Reimbursement, and establishes a $10 million grant fund. The program is to be spread out over the next seven years.

Mulvey explained that the new legislation revises the Chapter 70 formula that would now generate annual state investment hikes for districts, increase reimbursements for out-of-district special education transportation; raises the annual cap by $150 million on school building projects from $600 million to $750 million; fully funds charter school reimbursements; and creates a grant fund with the purpose of innovative educational approaches.

Mulvey noted the additional funding for school building projects bodes well for Quincy's plan to build a new Squantum School that is in the initial process with the Massachusetts School Building Authority.

Under the new law, there are increases for district foundation budget funding. The foundation budget is determined by the state for each district specifying a minimum net spending per student to provide an adequate education. Districts must pay a portion of the cost of this budget as determined by the state based on the community's property values and residents' incomes.

The foundation budget will now include costs for in and out-of-district special education programs, English language learners, and economically disadvantaged students.

Citing figures released by the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE), Mullaney explained that Quincy stands to receive an increase of $13.1 million in the school department's foundation budget and a $6.5 million hike in Chapter 70 state aid. The city will kick in $5.8 million for its share of the foundation budget.

Additionally, he said the city is anticipating a $400,000 to $500,000 increase in the Circuit Breaker Reimbursement that targets special education costs. The additional funds would cover out-of-district special education transportation costs that were not previously included. This will be phased in over the next four years.

Also, Quincy has the opportunity to apply for a competitive grant through the state's 21st Century Education Trust Fund. This is to help pay for new educational approaches. The state says the grant will help address "persistent disparities" in achievement gaps among student subgroups such as English learners and low-income students.

The new legislation was enacted in response to a review by the state that found Massachusetts schools are under budget by $2 billion due to the education funding formula's failure to keep up with inflationary costs such as employee and retiree health insurance benefits in addition to low-income, special education, and English language learner students.

The state formula that has been used to determine district aid has come under fire over the past several years. Critics have complained that the formula is flawed and grossly underestimates a district's true costs to provide an adequate education.

"We have been very much underfunded as opposed to our neighbors with similar populations," said Mullaney.

Committee member Emily Lebo said the state formula, up to now, considered

Quincy as a wealthy city that could pay a high percentage of the district's educational costs.

"We're not a wealthy city," she said. "We have high property values."

Lebo said the revised formula focuses on the high number of low-income and English learner students. As a result, the city will receive more state aid in the coming years.

"I'm happy to see that's changing," Lebo said.

The new formula determines a community's ability to fund its share of the foundation budget through its property tax. The difference would be paid by the state Chapter 70 aid. The state calculates the district's foundation budget based on specific grades, programs and student demographics.

According to the state, the goal of the Chapter 70 aid is to "ensure that every district has sufficient resources to meet its foundation budget spending level through an equitable combination of local property taxes and state aid."

The new law requires districts to submit evidence-based plans designed to close local achievement gaps. The plans must be approved by the school committee. A progress report must be submitted every year on how the district is doing addressing student subgroup disparities.

"There will be an annual monitoring to be sure the plans are being followed," said Mulvey.

The gap plans must address four key areas including establishing achievement targets for low-income and English learner students, identifying specific programs to be implemented, outlining how the state and local funds will be used, and specifying ongoing plans to increase engagement with families of special needs and English learner students.

Among the strategies that districts may include in the plans are expanded learning time, expanded prekindergarten and early learning, early college and career readiness pathways, a more diverse teacher workforce, and providing more school counselors and psychological services.

Mulvey said the expanded learning time would likely require a longer school day and would involve the input of all school employees to make it happen.

"This is going to take the efforts of all the stakeholders in the Quincy Public Schools and negotiations with all 10 unions," he said.

The state is requiring the plans to be submitted by April 1. Mulvey said the state has not yet issued guidelines and as a result, the district is at a standstill relative to drafting the plan.

Committee member Paul Bregoli expressed appreciation to the Quincy state delegation that "helped us get the extra money."

"We appreciate their efforts," he said.

City Replacing Skateboard Park At Pond Street Playground

Mayor Thomas Koch announce the city is replacing its skatepark with a new skatepark this spring.

Site preparations are already underway and park construction will occur during the spring months. Located at the Pond Street Playground, the original skatepark was constructed in 1999.

The new park will be a significant improvement in style and design from the original, city officials said. The park will feature multiple bowls, turnaround walls, top decks, ledges, banks, and a variety of elements for all skill levels. The park was designed with help from local residents and by Pillar Design Studios, viewed as one of the best skatepark design companies in the country.

"People of all ages and walks of life now participate in skateboarding," Koch said. "This project was a grass-roots effort started by residents that wanted a better place to skate. I applaud their participation in the process and look forward to seeing them at the new park."

The project was put out to bid in late-2019. Artisan/Adira Skateparks was the lowest qualified builder. Artisan is widely-considered the best skatepark contractor in the business. The construction cost of the project bid was $473,000. Funding for the project is coming from federal community development funds.

"We aim to meet the needs and interests of all our residents for use of our park system," said Commissioner of Natural Resources Dave Murphy. "Our skateboarding community is growing and we should be providing them the opportunity to enjoy their preferred recreation right here in Quincy without having them travel to other communities. I am excited to see the new park open this year."

Early Voting For March 3rd Presidential Primary

Early voting is separate from absentee balloting. Absentee balloting is for those who will be out of town the day of the election or would be unable to make it to the polls because of a disability or religious belief, while early voting is open to anyone.

Absentee balloting began Jan. 21, according to City Clerk Nicole Crispo, and will continue through noon on Monday, March 2. Those wishing to cast an absentee ballot can request to do so by mail or vote in person at the clerk's office, which is located on the second floor of the glass city hall annex building.

On the day of the primary, Tuesday, March 3, polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. The same polling places used in 2019 will be used this year.

The deadline to register to vote in the presidential primary, or change party affiliation, is Wednesday, Feb. 12, at 8 p.m. Massachusetts allows independent voters to cast ballots in any party's primary.

Fifteen candidates qualified for the Democratic ballot in Massachusetts, three of whom have since dropped out. Four candidates, including incumbent Donald Trump, will appear on the Republican ballot. There are also ten candidates running on the Libertarian ballot and four on the Green-Rainbow ballot. Ballot position for the primaries was determined by a random drawing in December.

The candidates on the Democratic primary, in order of appearance on the ballot, are:

Deval Patrick, a former Massachusetts governor; Amy Klobuchar, U.S. senator from Minnesota; Elizabeth Warren, U.S. senator from Massachusetts; Michael Bennet, U.S. senator from Colorado; Michael Bloomberg, former mayor of New York City; Tulsi Gabbard, congresswoman from Hawaii; Cory Booker, U.S. senator from New Jersey; Julian Castro, former secretary of Housing and Urban Development from Texas; Tom Steyer, a California businessman; Bernie Sanders, U.S. senator from Vermont; Joseph Biden, a former vice president from Delaware; John Delaney, a former congressman from Maryland; Andrew Yang, a businessman from New York; Pete Buttigieg, former mayor of South Bend, Indiana; and Marianne Williamson, an author from Texas.

Booker, Castro and Williamson all dropped out of the race in January.

The candidates on Republican ballot are: William Weld, a former Massachusetts governor; Joe Walsh, a former congressman from Illinois; Trump, a businessman seeking his second term in office; and Roque "Rocky" De La Fuente, a California businessman and perennial candidate.

The candidates on the Libertarian ballot are: Arvin Vohra; Vermin Love Supreme; Jacob George Hornberger; Samuel Joseph Robb; Dan Taxation Is Theft Behrman; Kimberly Margaret Ruff; Kenneth Reed Armstrong; Adam Kokesh; Jo Jorgensen; and Max Abramson.

The Green-Rainbow candidates are: Dario Hunter; Sedinam Kinamo Christin Moyowasifza-Curry; Kent Mesplay; Howard Hawkins.

The March ballot also features voting for the four parties' respective state committee man and committee woman, and the parties' ward committees. There is one state committee man and one committee woman elected for each state Senate district; Quincy is entirely within the Norfolk and Plymouth district.

There are two Quincy residents running for the Democratic state committee man seat, incumbent Patrick McDermott of 55 Dixwell Ave. and challenger John Cain Jr. of 192 South Central Ave. There is no candidate on the ballot for the state committee woman seat.

On the Republican side, incumbent committee man Matthew Sisk of 9 Canavan Dr., Braintree, is facing four challengers. They are: Daniel Dewey of 92 Sonoma Rd., Quincy; Joseph DiStasio of 80 Canavan Dr., Braintree; Stephen Tougas of 78 Gilbert St., Quincy; and Patrick James Verhault of 183 Highland Dr., Quincy. Kathleen Sullivan-Moran of 229 Quincy Shore Dr., Quincy, is the sole candidate on the ballot for the GOP committee woman seat.

There are no candidates on the ballot for seats on the Libertarian or Green-Rainbow state committees.

Up to 35 candidates are elected to the Democratic and Republican ward committees and voters can choose to vote for the whole slate. There are 10 seats on each Libertarian and Green-Rainbow ward committee, though no candidates are on the ballot for either party in any of Quincy's six wards.

There is also a separate state primary for other races that will be held Tuesday, Sept. 1. The deadline to register to vote in the state primary is 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 12. Currently, there would be no early voting period ahead of the September state primary though absentee balloting would proceed as usual.

Headlining the September state primary will be the Democratic primary for U.S. Senate, a race that includes incumbent Edward Markey and U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy III. Also on the ballot this year are races for seats in state Legislature and various county seats, including a special election for the Norfolk County sheriff.

The final election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3. The deadline to register to vote in November is Wednesday, Oct. 14, at 8 p.m.

There will be a two-week early voting period ahead of the November election; early voting will take place from Oct. 19 to Oct. 30.

Crispo, the city clerk, said early voting will once again take place at City Hall during that time period. Other details, including a potential Saturday voting location, will be finalized at a later date.

Register O'Donnell Promotes Registry Of Deeds Internet Research

Land Records Available Online At: www.norfolkdeeds.org

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell again reminds Norfolk County residents that you do not have to spend time and money driving to the Registry to view land records since they are available online via the Registry's internet-based document research system at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"Providing secure, accurate and accessible land record information, coupled with our on-site customer service center, is central to our work here at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds," O'Donnell said.

Elaborating on the Registry's research capabilities, O'Donnell noted, "Users are able to research land record information by multiple options, including the name of the property owner and property address. Members of the public can access our internet-based document research system for many endeavors such as determining property ownership, researching land titles, reviewing land plans (only plans which are recorded at the Registry) and finally to confirm that documents affecting a person's property, such as mortgage discharges, have been recorded."

The Registry's website also provides information on how to obtain certified copies of land documents.

The Registry's certified copy charges are $1 per page plus an additional $1 per document for postage.

"Our core mission here at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds includes providing our users with first-class customer service each and every day," O'Donnell said. "Norfolk County residents and businesses deserve a Registry of Deeds that provides them with access to land record information in an easily accessible and consumer friendly manner."

"The Registry website www.norfolkdeeds.org does that by bringing the Registry records into your homes and businesses."

Ask Barbara Graceffa:

'Secretary Of The Interior' De-Cluttering Tips

I saw on your website that you help clients with de-cluttering. Would you mind sharing some tips on getting my clothes closet into shape? Corrine

As with any client project, I begin with lots of questions that I am happy to share with you.

The most important question is about mindset: Why am I doing this? The likely answer is that your closet brings you stress - because it is bulging at the seams, you can't find anything, or it is so overcrowded that everything comes out wrinkled (or a combination of these!).

The average closet takes 1-4 hours to declutter. So, get in the mood; pour your favorite beverage and put on some energizing music. Weekends and mornings are best.

Then gather the supplies you need like trash bags (I recommend two different colors: one destined for the curb and the other for charitable donations) and bins for possible out-of-season storage elsewhere in your house. Another strategy is to enlist a friend to assist you; she can not only lend a helping hand and motivate you, but also be honest with you when making hard choices.

As you begin, please note the 80/20 rule: We wear 20 percent of what we own 80 percent of the time. Given this statistic, ask yourself:

- Does it fit? Is it flattering? In style? Comfortable?
- Is it in need of repair? Stained? Worn out?
- Do I love it? Am I sick of it?
- Would I buy this today?
- When was the last time I wore it?
- Do I have duplicates?
- What is the emotional attachment it has over me?

When in doubt, these two final questions could be the deal breakers:

- What has more value to me, this item or the space it takes up?
- If this was gone tomorrow, would I miss it?

I once read that you should think of your closet as valuable real estate. Don't let clothes you don't love or wear stay without paying rent - evict them!

VOLUNTEERS FROM the Quincy Point Congregational Church and Houghs Neck Congregational Church teamed up recently to build and stain 12 beds for the non-profit organization "A Bed for Every Child." ## 'Build A Bed' Comes To Quincy Point

On Saturday morning, Jan. 11, a truck from the "Build A Bed" Project arrived at Quincy Point Congregational Church UCC.

In less than three hours, 12 beds were built, sanded, stained and loaded back on the truck. Over four dozen volunteers for this project were recruited by event organizer Adam McGhee, a member of QPCC. He said he hopes that other local groups will want to organize their own "Build A Bed" event.

Materials and instructions for bed building are provided by the MA non-profit organization, "A Bed for Every Child." Their staff told the local volunteers that many children growing up in poverty in Massachusetts do not have a bed of their own.

"A Bed for Every Child knows a bed alone is not going to end poverty, but we also know giving a child a good night's sleep can help them in school," a staff member said. "We also know that an education is the pathway for a child to raise up and out of poverty as an adult."

Money was raised for the building materials through donations. Members of the church Confirmation Class were involved in the project and volunteers for the event came from eight different cities and towns including a team from the Houghs Neck Congregational Church led by the Rev. Stephen Vandergrift. Bedding, books and children's bedtime essentials were donated by individuals. Additional cozy fleece materials came from AnniesKindnessBlankets.org.

Rev. Kim Murphy, pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church, reflected on the morning: "It was a fantastic experience! We were able to put our faith and our hope and our love in action to help the members of our community in concrete, life-affirming ways. This is what being a church is about - to show everyone how much we care."

Information about a "Build A Bed" Project is available by contacting Yadira Carvajal, Program Coordinator 781-595-7570 x19 yadira@mahomeless.org. More information can be found on the website: www.abedforeverychild.org.

Koch: No Timeline Yet For New City Hall, Performing Arts Center

The new municipal building would be located at the site of Munroe Building, which sits across the Hancock-Adams Common from the city hall complex. The two-story building at 1227-1259 Hancock St. was built in the 1920s; the newer eight-story building at 1205 Hancock St., Munroe Place, would remain untouched.

In his inaugural address on Jan. 6, Koch said he wanted to acquire and then tear down the Munroe Building and construct a 14- or 15-story municipal building in its place. The new building would include roughly 200,000 square feet of interior space, two-thirds of which would be set aside for Quincy College.

The mayor, in a recent interview, said his administration is in the process of putting together a timeline for constructing the new building.

"We're actually working now to put together the timeline on how long it will take to acquire the building, to relocate the businesses that are there, to do the drawings and specs necessary to get it to the point of putting out for a bid package and so forth," Koch said.

"We've got a lot of work ahead of us. I don't have a timeline on it yet."

The mayor expects to present plans for the new municipal building to the City Council this fall; he said it is unlikely the plans will be ready to present prior to the end of the current fiscal year in June.

"This calendar year, I expect we will be before the council probably for the college/city hall building," Koch said.

"I don't think we'll be there before the end of the fiscal year," he added.

"We've got a lot of work to do."

Koch said there is no price tag for the proposal at this point. He plans to seek outside funding for both the municipal building and the performing arts center.

"It's my intention with both of these buildings to be looking for federal help, state help, foundation and outside grant help," he said. "I know immediately my detractors say, 'there he goes spending money again.' It's my expectation we're going to be successful in getting outside parties to the table to help put this together, so the cost isn't completely borne by the taxpayer of Quincy."

Once complete, the municipal offices inside the 1970s glass annex building that comprises half the city hall complex would move to the new high-rise building. Koch said the Planning Department, which is presently located at the nearby Coddington Building, could potentially move to the new building as well. Quincy College, a municipally owned school, would use the space for classrooms and offices, but there are no plans to put dormitories inside the building.

The new building would likely have separate entrances for the city offices and the college, the mayor stated.

"We would have the main entrance of city hall on the green...and the main entrance to the college would be...facing the T and facing Hancock Street," Koch said. "You would probably have some shared space, but we would also have probably separate elevator banks for the school versus the city hall operation stuff, because there are security issues."

There are no plans to include any street-level retail space in the municipal GLASS CITY HALL annex would be razed to make way for a new performing arts center under a proposal introduced by Mayor Thomas Koch. The new building would be located further back from Hancock Street than the annex and would be built partially over the MBTA tracks in the rear. The annex, which opened in the 1970s, requires millions of dollars of work over the next several years, Koch said, which is why he proposing to replace it with a new high-rise building nearby.

building, Koch said, but his administration will reach out to the National Park Service to discuss moving the visitors center for the Adams National Historical Park to the new building. The visitors center is presently located across the street inside Presidents Place at 1250 Hancock St., which is also home to Quincy College.

"It would complicate things because you have to do things for bidding and all that. It gets a little trickier," Koch answered when asked if space in the new building would be set aside for street-level retail.

"We're not contemplating street retail, but we are going to be in discussions with the National Park Service. They've always wanted to get a bigger space for a visitors center. Does it make sense to incorporate that as part of the building? These are the discussions we're going to have in the coming weeks and months. The college bookstore — does it stay at Presidents Place or does that come over? These are the kind of discussions we'll have."

Koch, in his inaugural address, said the 1970s glass annex building is in need of major repairs in the coming years. In the recent interview, the mayor said the required work could cost millions of dollars, which is why the administration is planning to open the high-rise building and raze the annex.

"That glass building is going to need everything over the next five years. It needs a roof. It needs HVAC. It doesn't have any fire suppression. It needs a new elevator. The windows are starting to fail; essentially, you're going to have to reskin the whole glass building," he said.

"You're talking millions of dollars to maintain that building as it should be over the next five years. That was one of the reasons we're kind of looking at it all."

The James R. McIntyre Government Center, also known as Old City Hall, first opened in 1844 and re-opened in 2015 following an extensive renovation project. The McIntyre Government Center is connected to the glass annex building by an enclosed single-story passageway; the connection was built as part of the renovation project and replaced the previous two-story link between the buildings.

The McIntyre Government Center can operate separate from the annex, Koch said, and the connection between the two buildings can be removed easily.

"When we had that building done, I made sure that the old building can operate independently," Koch said. "The only reason for the connection is for the public to connect, but that can easily come down and look like there was nothing there. That was thought about back then."

The performing arts center would be located in the vicinity of the glass annex building. The mayor said it would likely be set further back from Hancock Street than the annex is and could be partially built over the MBTA tracks in the rear. The city, he said, would likely not have to pay the MBTA to do so.

Koch said he has met with a philanthropist, who does not wish to be identified, to discuss plans for the performing arts center.

"The gentleman that is at the table with me right now is a philanthropist. He doesn't want his name used yet publicly. He actually has spent a lot of time over the last five, six, seven years looking at these all across

South Shore Story Goes To Concord: Quincy Artist Paintings On Display

Quincy, MA, Plein Air artist Yvonne Lamothe's "Winds of Change" will be held at Concord Art, 37 Lexington Rd., Concord, MA from January 16 until February 16, 2020 with her personal focus on our vulnerable wetlands and coast.

Quincy artist Yvonne Lamothe sends the South Shore story to Concord, MA and beyond through her vivid and expressive paintings of the natural world. En plein air, the French term for painting outside in the elements was the initial draw for Lamothe to the Quincy and Weymouth landscape while still being able to live close to Boston's cultural scene.

Lamothe is a member of Galatea Fine Arts in Boston's SOWA Art District.

She also shows her work at Paula Estey Gallery in Newburyport and Cross-Rip Gallery in Harwich Port.

Living in close proximity to a marsh, she is immersed by her surroundings. Lamothe says, "My daily walks in the neighborhood, along Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston Beach, and through the Sailors' Home Cemetery Marsh Trail at Blacks Creek are so filled with deep, rich, colors and both intimate and expansive views, that I need just to remain still and paint."

As her passion for the South Shore landscape developed, so did her concern for the environmental threats brought to the area by the unprecedented development of a toxic, fracked gas compressor station that is being built on the waterways of the Fore River Basin. She feels the lack of protection for the health and safety of people and the environment is disheartening and dangerous.

In addition, development of the Beachcomber site on Quincy Shore Drive will also put her back yard at risk from flooding. Lamothe said she feels again at the mercy of an unresponsive governor and the MA DEP as they have not acted in the interest of people. For Lamothe her painting and her environmental advocacy are entangled.

Koch: No Timeline Yet For New City Hall, Performing Arts Center

the world. He has come up with a concept that he thinks makes it sustainable going forward," Koch said.

"A lot of times...they take an old warehouse or something and they try to make a theater out of it. They are constantly pouring money into it because they can't sustain it. It doesn't generate enough revenue.

"It's a very interesting discussion because he has his own architect and everything on this. They have certain venues within the venue...they've really done a ton of research, which, if we create this partnership with them, then our life would be a lot easier because we're not recreating the wheel here. There is a lot of homework that's been done on this.

"He's been looking to do this in the Greater Boston area - he's looked in Cambridge, he's looked in Boston - and it's been challenging to put the right real estate together for it. His eyes were wide open when we gave him a tour of Quincy and what we're doing here and the potential site. There is some enthusiasm with great interest by him on this, and with him comes some substantial dollars to put into the project. There will be more to say when he's ready."

The new performing arts center could include three separate venues.

"There would be three main venues in there. I think the largest venue is probably 1,000 to 1,200 seats. There would be a theater-type space...and there could be a separate movie house," the mayor said.

"He's talked about how you activate each of those spaces every night of the week. It's easy to activate it on certain nights. What do you do on those other nights? How do you keep the revenue coming in to keep the place going?"

"The guy has done a lot

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH has proposed acquiring the 1920s Munroe Building on Hancock Street in Quincy Center and tearing it down to make way for a new high-rise building that would accommodate city offices and provide a new home for Quincy College. The 14- or 15-story building would include some 200,000 square feet of interior space, two thirds of which would be for the city-owned college. The building could potentially include a new visitors center for the National Park Service.

of work on this."

The ownership structure for the new performing arts building has to be determined, Koch said, though he does expect the city to have a stake in it.

"All of that is a big question right now. It's very early," the mayor said. "I would imagine there would be some kind of a partnership with a non-profit or something to operate it, but the city would have some kind of ownership."

The MBTA is planning a mixed-use development at the Quincy Center station and has awarded rights to the project to a joint venture between two private companies, Atlantic Development of Hingham and Bozzuto Development of Maryland; the firms are also behind a mixed-use project at the North Quincy station that is already under construction.

In its request for proposals for the Quincy Center station project, the MBTA did not require bidders to include parking for commuters. Koch said the city and developers are nonetheless interested in including parking on site and he expects up to 500 spaces would be provided.

"The MBTA, when they did the RFP a few years ago, is not requiring any parking at the Quincy Center station for T use. We are interested in parking and the developer is interested in parking," Koch said.

"My guess is we are going to work some kind of a partnership with the developer to build a garage that will help support what we're doing at the college and at the performing arts center. That part of the square, I think we need it anyway. You've got Presidents Place, but that gets maxed out, so I think it will make sense to have a 400- or 500-car parking garage there to serve those facilities and that part of that square."

Plans to develop the station site are still in the works, Koch said; the MBTA is working to determine which upgrades are required to the station itself.

"The T has pulled back a little bit because they have to figure out exactly what they have to do to the station. We're talking about building over the station, but what do they need to do to the station?" Koch said.

"They are going through an exercise now. For example, does it make sense to have two headhouses? Does it make sense to have another entrance down toward the Dimmock Street end of the station? It probably does, so how many elevators do we need? Are there escalators? What kind of work does the existing platform need? All of those things."

"The station itself is going to need work," the mayor added. "I think there is an expectation by the T that the developer will participate in that, but I also think the expectation might be a little too high because I don't know that there is enough value in the development there that is going to eat paying for $50 or $100 million in improvements to the station."

Raiders' Offense Clicks In 82-59 Win Over Presidents

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High boys' basketball team showed just how capable they are of scoring in their rivalry contest last Friday night.

The Red Raiders hosted the Quincy Presidents and had plenty of success shooting the basketball. They also got the job done on defense as they came out with an 82-59 victory. With the win, the Red Raiders improved to 8-4 on the season while the Presidents fell to 2-11 with the loss.

"I'm just really happy with the way we played tonight," Red Raiders head coach Kevin Barrett said. "I think we made a concerted effort to come out and take care of the basketball. That was one of the points of emphasis and just to stick to our principles defensively. Sometimes both things can kind of go array in a game like this, a rivalry game in front of a big crowd."

The Red Raiders got hot early on offense, putting up 23 points in the first quarter. They started the game on a 10-2 run which included a three-point play from Colby St. Marie (16 points, 10 rebounds), who made a free throw after hitting a layup as he got fouled. Additionally, Aaron Huang sank a three-pointer in the run which put the team up by eight points. In total, he made six three-pointers for the Red Raiders in the win and netted a career-high 22 points.

"We kind of expected that they would play some zone, as they had in the past," Barrett said of Quincy. "We figured if we could shake Aaron loose a little bit for some open looks it would kind of open everything up. I think he might have missed his first one or two, then he got it going after."

NORTH QUINCY senior center Colby St. Marie draws a blocking foul on Quincy sophomore guard Benny Nguyen in the Red Raiders' 82-59 win over the Presidents Jan. 24 at NQHS. St. Marie had 16 points and 10 rebounds as North Quincy improved to 8-4 on the season. Nguyen scored a team-high 23 points for the Presidents who fell to 2-11 with the loss.

With 1:21 left in the quarter, Jordan Davis had a steal, fast break and layup for the Presidents, putting an end to a Red Raiders 9-0 scoring run.

"I think we've got to play a little bit better on defense," Presidents head coach David Parry said. "We worked hard. The effort was there, just not the results. Our varsity level inexperience showed tonight, but hopefully we just keep getting better each time we go out there. I thought they moved the ball very well."

"Some of the mental lapses we had I was really not expecting. Not closing out the 3-point shooters and things like that. We will take from it and build off of it. Like I keep saying, it is a learning year."

Both sides had a positive showing in their in-city rivalry bout last Friday night. The North Quincy High

Red Raiders hosted the Quincy Presidents in girls' basketball, and the older, more experienced Presidents team came out on top. The Presidents won the game 54-39 and improved to 8-5 on the season. With the loss, the Red Raiders fell to 2-11.

"It is always fun," Presidents head coach Jeff Bretsch said of the rivalry game. "This my 20th year of doing this. It never gets old.

It is fun every time. This environment is a special thing for the kids. It is a life memory to be a part of it. You get a chance to play in front of 1,000 people. Crowd going crazy at everything you do. It's a blast. Always a big win against North Quincy. They always come to play."

"I thought we competed well and played hard," Red Raiders head coach Paul Bregoli added. "I thought our first half was great. They hurt us with some threes early, but the kids continued to battle. I thought Amanda Hellmuth (18 points) kept

Although they were down by 15 points early, the Presidents continued fighting back. They had a 9-0 run of their own in the second quarter to make it a 33-22 game. Highlights of this run included a three-pointer Drew Polsgrove and a lay-up off the glass by Benny Nguyen.

Nguyen scored a team-high 23 points for the Presidents in the contest, but 21 of those 23 points came in the second half.

"He has been up and down," Parry said of Nguyen. "He obviously has a different skill set. Now it is just the speed of the game he has got to get used to. But it is always encouraging to see a young kid like that, a young player stepping up. Especially in a situation like this, big crowd and so forth, stepping up and continuing to play hard."

In the final minute of the second half, Steve Dalla (18 points) and Huang sank three-pointers for the Red Raiders, giving them a 44-25 lead.

The Red Raiders kept their momentum going in the second half. They had a 17-3 run which lasted for the majority of the third quarter as they spread the ball around to a number of players. St. Marie capped it off with a free throw with 1:58 in the third quarter to give the team a 63-35 lead.

In the fourth quarter, the Presidents outscored the Red Raiders 20-16, but the deficit they faced was too large to overcome.

As a result of the win, as of the start of this week the Red Raiders were two wins away from clinching a spot in the postseason, and they had eight games left to do it.

"Coming into the season, every year it is a goal to qualify for the tournament," Barrett said. "The sooner you can do that the better, obviously. That is something we have on our radar and haven't been able to do for four years. That is something that is in the back of our minds. It is not in the forefront."

Presidents Boys' Hockey Falls To Dragons, 6-0

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys' hockey team faced off against a tough and experienced Duxbury Dragons team on the road last Saturday afternoon. It did not go their way.

The Presidents got shut out by Duxbury 6-0 and fell to 2-8-2 on the season.

"We played afraid," Presidents head coach Ted Walsh Jr. said. "We were afraid to be hit. We were afraid to compete. It showed all over the ice."

"I don't mind losing as long as the effort is there," he added. "They're clearly a more talented team at this point. That's OK. But when you don't compete, you don't show up and anoint them champions before you even step on the ice, I have a huge problem with that. Our compete level was non-existent. We're going to address this stuff at practice."

Duxbury struck first with 7:02 remaining in the first period. After goaltender Daniel Freeman made a few stops, a strong pass set a Duxbury forward up for a goal as the team continued putting pressure on the Presidents. It was Duxbury's only goal of the period.

In the second, Duxbury's had their most successful spurt, netting three goals in a five minute span. First, they put up a goal with 7:42 remaining in the period. Then, three minutes later, they extended their lead 3-0 and with 3:04 left in the period, Duxbury scored on a one-timer as the team spread the puck around and methodically found their best scoring opportunity.

Early in the third period, the Presidents got a two minute penalty as a result of some roughhousing on both sides. Although no Duxbury players went to the penalty box, two of their players were ejected from the contest. However, Duxbury capitalized on the power play opportunity. The Dragons had a two-man fast break and made it a 5-0 game with 9:49 remaining. Duxbury would score once more with about three minutes left in the game and improved to 7-2-3 as a result of the win.

Duxbury has a deep and experienced roster this season. They have 12 seniors on the team and in total, they have 30 players overall on varsity.

For Walsh the loss was particularly tough because his team had played some strong games as of late headed into the Duxbury game. On Jan. 11, for example, the team picked up their first win of the season in a 6-2 game against Plymouth South. And on Jan. 20, they shut out the Southeastern/West Bridgewater/Bristol Plymouth, 4-0; as of the start of this week, that co-op was 9-2-3 on the season.

Additionally, the team had a 3-3 tie against Cambridge Rindge and Latin on Dec. 14, a team that is 10-1-3 as of the start of this week, and they tied North Quincy 0-0 on Dec. 26, their rival and a fellow Patriot League team that is in the hunt for a playoff spot this season (5-5-3 as of the start of this week).

That said, he said his team is capable of playing better than they did against Duxbury.

"That's the most frustrating part," Walsh said of his team's performance against Duxbury. "We show flashes where when we do compete for three periods, we can play with just about anybody. That's a very good Duxbury team. You have to give them credit. Our last loss before today was against Hanover and they're a very good team also. Everybody loses and everybody wins, but when you lose the game before you step on the ice, that's a huge problem."

For the most part the Presidents are a young team, but each of their four captains are seniors this season: forwards John O'Brien, Thomas MacPherson, Ryan Quirk and defenseman Brendan Bailey.

The majority of their players, however, are underclassmen and Walsh said the program is doing everything they can to improve at practice as they continue their development.

"We're working on everything," he said. "We work on breaking out and competing. That's the frustrating part. We have systems we execute and are supposed to be executing in games, but we have not been executing. We put a lot of time into this. We video it and break it down for them."

The Presidents next game will be played this Saturday, Feb. 1 at home against the Marshfield Rams (6:40 p.m. start time, Quincy Youth Arena).

Sheriff Jerry McDermott Pushes For Action On Impaired Driving Legislation

Norfolk County Sheriff Jerry P. McDermott recently pledged his support for a bill that would implement the recommendations of the Special Commission on Operating Under the Influence and Impaired Driving.

"As sheriff for Norfolk County, I see too often the effects of addiction among the inmate population," Sheriff Jerry McDermott said. "The majority of the inmates in the Norfolk County House of Correction are incarcerated for drug related offenses. They are off the streets for now, but sadly, many will reoffend, and will get behind the wheel of a vehicle. We have a lot of work to do to prevent that."

H.71, An Act Implementing the Recommendations of the Special Commission on Operating Under the Influence and Impaired Driving, sponsored by Governor Charlie Baker, and was brought before the Joint Committee on the Judiciary last November, for a hearing. This legislation would update current statutes to keep them in line with new regulations pertaining to social consumption of marijuana.

Some of the recommendations in this bill include:

- Adopting implied consent laws to suspend the driver's licenses of arrested motorists who refuse to cooperate in chemical testing for drugs, as existing law has long required for arrested motorists who refuse breath testing for alcohol.

- Adopting a statute authorizing courts to take judicial notice that ingesting THC, the active chemical in marijuana, can and does impair motorists.

- Directing the Municipal Police Training Committee (MPTC) to expand the training of drug recognition experts and allowing them to testify as expert witnesses in civil and criminal cases.

- Prohibiting drivers from having loose or unsealed packages of marijuana in the driver's compartment of a vehicle, under the same provision of the motor vehicle code that has long prohibited driving with open containers of alcohol.

- Permitting judicial notice of the scientific validity and reliability of the horizontal gaze nystagmus test, which would make it easier for the Commonwealth to introduce the results of that test at trial to demonstrate a driver's intoxication.

- Empowering police officers to seek electronic search warrants for evidence of chemical intoxication, as is the practice in over thirty other states. Any blood draw would have to be authorized by a neutral magistrate after a showing of probable cause and would be performed by a doctor, nurse, or other appropriate medical staff at a health care facility.

- Developing educational materials and programming on drug impairment to share with trial court judges.

Sheriff Jerry McDermott commended state Sen. James Eldridge and state Rep. Claire Cronin, the co-chairs of the Joint Committee on the Judiciary for their attention to this important issue, and urged them to act swiftly towards its passage.

"I am pleased that the Special Commission presented their recommendations, and I applaud the efforts of the Baker-Polito Administration in addressing this safety hazard, which causes death and injury to many, and creates criminal behavior for many more," Sheriff Jerry McDermott said. "It is my hope that the Judiciary Committee will also see the importance of this legislation, and advance it early in this new year."

On Tuesday, Jan. 14, at approximately 5:35 p.m., Officers Francis, Ruggiero and McCormack were dispatched to a Wollaston address for a male and female arguing over a road rage incident. When officers arrived, they immediately separated all involved parties.

A male (the victim) at the scene stated he was traveling south on Harvard Street when he noticed a vehicle behind him in traffic kept closing into the bumper to his vehicle. The operator of that vehicle attempted to pass the victim on the right side (single lane) and then attempted to pass him twice on the left side. When the victim came to the stop sign at Harvard and Sherman Streets, he made a right turn to go to his home. He saw the vehicle was still behind him and was operating aggressively at his bumper and still trying to pass his vehicle.

The victim pulled into his driveway and looked into his rearview mirror to see a female get out of the suspect vehicle. She was yelling and swearing at the victim as she approached him in his driveway. The victim said told the female that she was trespassing on private property and told her to leave. She retorted, "What are you going to do? Shoot me?"

The victim had his young son with him and was concerned for his safety, so he advised the suspect that he was going to call the police. This set the suspect off even more, yelling incoherently.

At this time, neighbors started to come outside because of all the yelling. The victim took out his cellphone to take a photo of the suspect's license plate but it came out too blurry, so he asked a neighbor to retake it.

As the female neighbor attempted to take the photo, the suspect ran up to her and kicked her in the hand to prevent her from taking the picture. The suspect kicked her hand a second time to prevent her from picking up her cell phone, then kicked the cell phone out of her reach. The sister of the neighbor who was attempting to take the photo came to her aid but was then assaulted by the suspect, who grabbed her by her hair and started pulling her around, ultimately throwing her to the ground.

The original victim went to the assistance of the female on the ground and was able to pull the suspect off of her. The suspect then got into her vehicle and drove off, but minutes later she returned to the area while the police were there.

After verifying that one witness was kicked twice and her sister assaulted, Officer McCormack spoke with the suspect who admitted that she knew what she did was wrong but justified it by saying she was just trying to get home. She said she honked her horn at the victim's vehicle which caused him to slow his speed, but denied trying to pass him. She also denied getting into any physical confrontation with anyone.

Based on the above information, Officer McCormack placed the suspect, a 27-year-old Brockton resident under arrest and charged her with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (shod foot), assault and battery and possession of an open container in a motor vehicle.

Officer McCormack further interviewed the sisters. One said she was in her bedroom when she heard screaming and swearing outside, clearly hearing a female say, "Shoot me, shoot me." She said she went downstairs and saw her sister was going outside so she followed. When she heard her neighbor/victim ask for someone to take a photo of the suspect's license plate, she took out her cellphone out and as she went to take the photo, the suspect yelled at her to "Mind your own business" followed by a kick to her hand by the suspect.

She confirmed she was kicked a second time. The sister came over to stop the suspect from kicking her sister and this was when the suspect grabbed her sister by the hair and threw her to the ground. The suspect's vehicle was searched as part of the inventory process and officers found one open 24 oz can of Four Loko in the center console cup holder. Four Loko is an alcoholic beverage known for its high percentage of alcohol and contains caffeine.

Nice Work!

OBITUARIES

William W. Lydon Jr., 77

A funeral Mass for William W. "Billy" Lydon Jr., 77, of Dennis, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Lydon died peacefully Jan. 22 surrounded by his loving family.

Born in Boston, he was raised in Dorchester and was the son of the late William W. and Dorothy C. (Meehan) Lydon. He attended local schools and graduated from Dorchester High School with the Class of 1960. After high school, Mr. Lydon enlisted in the United States Army Reserves, and proudly served his country for six years.

His career was vast and fruitful. Mr. Lydon was the proprietor of Bay Area Insulation Incorporated of Quincy. He was the president of health and welfare for Local 6. He enjoyed his work and the relationships he built throughout the years. In 1994, at the age of 52, Mr. Lydon happily retired.

Family was the most important part of Mr. Lydon's life. He loved his wife, his five girls and eleven grandchildren more than anything. A loyal and loving person, there wasn't anything he wouldn't do for the people in his life.

In Mr. Lydon's spare time, he enjoyed boating, golfing, watching the New England Patriots, wintering in Florida and spending time with his family and friends. He was a proud member of the American Legion Post 0488 in Dennis, the Sons of Erin in West Yarmouth and the Boat Owners Association in Dennis. He loved his boat, "JOMAR," a name that was near and dear to him that represented his family. Boating season was his favorite time of year and everyone knew it. His family knew to never schedule big events during that season because Mr. Lydon would be out on the water.

He was the beloved husband of Joan M. (Cunningham) Lydon. The two married on Oct. 2, 1965 at Stow Country Club, Stow, MA and together they shared 54 years of loving marriage. He was the devoted father of Donna M. Price and her husband Scott, Kimberly A. Lydon and her fiancé Kevin Cox, all of Braintree, Jodi M. MacNeil and her husband Donald of Belmont, Kristen M. Sullivan and her husband Joseph of W. Roxbury and Erin M. Gerry and her husband Paul of Braintree. ## Rose I. Kennedy, 80

A funeral Mass for Rose I. (Volpe) Kennedy, 80, of Quincy, was celebrated Jan. 24 in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Kennedy died peacefully Jan. 16 at her home, surrounded by her loving family.

Born in Quincy, she was the daughter of the late John and Iole (Santilli) Volpe and attended local schools and graduated from Quincy High School with the Class of 1957. She continued her education at the Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing, graduating with the Class of 1960.

Mrs. Kennedy worked as a nurse in Quincy City Hospital until 1964 when she left to raise her three children. She also worked for the family business, All White Potato Company in Boston for many years. Mrs. Kennedy returned to her love of nursing in 1990 at Marion Manor in South Boston where she worked until her retirement in 2015 after 25 years of service. Nursing and caring for others was a lifelong passion for Mrs. Kennedy. She was a kind, gentle, and selfless woman who truly enjoyed helping others. She was loved by all who she had the opportunity to meet.

Mrs. Kennedy was a South

ROSE I. KENNEDY

Shore girl and lived in Quincy and Braintree with her family for many years. Mrs. Kennedy was active in the Gardener's Guild of Braintree. She was one of the founding members and was their sixth president. Mrs. Kennedy was renowned for her Christmas craft workshops that she held in her home for many years in the 1980s, and her incredible bow making, boxwood tree, and wreath making skills were appreciated by all. She generously donated her time and talents to beautify Braintree's historic homes with the Gardener's Guild. Mrs. Kennedy was also a consistent supporter of the Pan Mass Challenge charity for the Dana Farber Cancer Research.

She was well connected with people in her community. Mrs. Kennedy was an avid bowler and leader of her Lady Bug team with the Bowling League at Olindy's in Quincy for many years. She was an accomplished bocci player. She was the acknowledged leader on the bocci court who was tough to beat on any given day at the Braintree Senior Center. She also enjoyed the book club with neighbors at her apartment complex in Quarry Hills.

Mrs. Kennedy was the beloved wife of 58 years of Paul G. Kennedy. She was the devoted mother of Paul Kennedy, Jr. and his wife Maria, Melissa Kennedy and her husband Joe Maleady, and the late Kristen Kennedy, and her life partner Tracee Whitley who survives. She was the loving grandmother of Vincent and Ian Kennedy. She was the sister of Mary Mattie, Tony Volpe, and the late John Volpe, and is survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Services concluded with private cremation and interment at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to the Pan Mass Challenge, C/O Dana Farber Cancer Research, 450 Brookline Ave, Boston, MA 02215 or visit pmc.org/pk0093.

Ruth S. Dobbie, 96

A funeral for Ruth S. (Nutting) Dobbie, 96, of Quincy was held Jan. 24 in Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Dobbie died peacefully Jan. 20.

She was born and raised in Quincy. She was a graduate of Thayer Academy and went on to graduate from Boston University for her Masters.

Mrs. Dobbie was the executive director of the Quincy VNA for 35 years. She was a member of many organizations including the Eastern Star and was on the Board of Directors for Eventide Nursing Home. She was also a devoted member of Christ Church in Quincy.

After retiring, Mrs. Dobbie was a volunteer with her husband for Beechwood on the Bay and enjoyed reading her newspaper, gardening, and spending her time with her family in good old Rocky Nook.

Loving wife of the late John M. Dobbie and mother of the late Sheryl L. Murphy (Dobbie) and her late husband Douglas Murphy. She was Nana to her grandchildren; Heather and David MacWhinnie, Douglas and Ruby Murphy, Victoria and Donnie Doroni, and Renee and Jacob Couture. As well as four great-grandchildren Cody, Matthew, Isabelle and Jackson.

Interment at Milton Cemetery.

Noreen Iacovino

A funeral Mass for Noreen (Butler) Iacovino was celebrated Tuesday in Our Lady of Good Counsel, Quincy.

Mrs. Iacovino died peacefully Jan. 21 surrounded by her loving family.

She grew up in Dorchester with her two sisters, Mary and Eileen, and her cousins Patsy, Eileen, and Ambrose. Her mother immigrated from Ireland and took care of the six children until her passing. The sisters and cousins stayed close and developed a passion for Ireland, visiting the "old country" many times.

When she was a young woman, she met Domenic Iacovino. They were a match made in heaven, marrying and moving to Houghs Neck, Quincy, to raise their family. They had a wonderful life, opening their doors to all of their children's friends. Mrs. Iacovino could always be found cooking gourmet meals, inviting friends and neighbors over for dinner. She was everyone's friend. She loved the beach and spent many summer days at the beach with her children.

Mrs. Iacovino was a dedicated wife, mother, and grandmother. Her passion was her family. She hosted all of the holidays so that everyone could partake in the joy. Every holiday was an event at the Iacovinos' house. They would cook for days preparing for the elaborate meals. Music was always playing in their home. Mrs. Iacovino and Dom spent their summers at Lake Winnepesaukee surrounded by many nieces and nephews. She was devoted to her family and she was a faithful friend. Mrs. Iacovino enjoyed her life with Domenic until he passed away. They were married 60 years. Beloved mother of Frank and wife Rosemary of Pembroke, Stephen and late wife Christine of Marshfield, Teresa Boughner and husband Tim Boughner of Waltham, and Kenneth Gibson and wife Pauline Gibson of Marshfield. She leaves her loving grandchildren Kyle, Jeremy, Justin, Lauren, Jessica, Zachary, Emma, Donovan, Nathan, Amanda, Jenna, and Kirsten; and her great grandchildren, Desmond, Dominic, and Harper. "Nana Nora" will be dearly missed and remembered as the fun Nana who would take them to the park, long walks on the beach, read them special stories, and serve delicious meals.

Mrs. Iacovino is also survived by her loving brother-in-law Richard Iacovino and his wife Betty of Rockland, Aunt Mary Chianno of Braintree, she is the sister of the late Mary Butler Gibson, the late Eileen Butler Vanderveen, and the late Peggy Butler. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews who will dearly miss "Auntie."

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at cff.org/give or Perkins School for the Blind at support.perkins.org/give.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You need to be certain that all the right conditions are in place before you take that first step. It can't hurt to listen to good advice from those who have your best interests at heart.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be careful not to get involved in other people's disputes unless you know the facts behind the disagreements. That's the best way to be assured of making wise and honest decisions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You still need to be careful about how you're going to spend those energy reserves you finally got around to restoring. Best advice: Avoid overdoing it. Let things take their course.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect continues to favor travel -- alone or with that special person. So if you've been putting off making those getaway plans, it's still a good time to get started on them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Those so-called golden opportunities that continue to dazzle the Lion still need to be carefully checked out. Be suspicious about anything that looks like the "perfect" prospect.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Changes at the workplace could make it more difficult to do things the way you prefer. But the wise Virgo who shows some flexibility could find it paying off in a big way.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might want to check out the explanation you were given for a sudden shift in your duties. There's a possibility that you haven't been told all the facts that you deserve to know.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Having confidence in your abilities is important, especially when you could be facing a new challenge, whether it's in the workplace or in a personal relationship. Good luck.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new work-related opportunity might not be all that it seems. Before making any decisions, you might want to check with others who have had some experience in that area.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A situation involving someone close could benefit from your timely intervention. Avoid being judgmental. There'll be plenty of time later for those "little talks" you like to have.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Travel could be a surprise element in that new project. Be prepared for other previously undisclosed aspects that also might come to light as you proceed with the work.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Try to balance your work-related responsibilities with the time you're spending on your recently revived social life. An old friend might be planning to return after a long absence.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sensitivity makes you aware of the needs of others. Have you considered a career as a counselor?

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Regina King, who won a supporting actress Oscar for "If Beale Street Could Talk," announced she'll direct the civil-rights drama "One Night in Miami," based on the book and stage play by Kemp Powers. The film, set in 1964, will have Malcolm X, Cassius Clay (pre-Muhammad Ali), Jim Brown and Sam Cooke played by actors. King has come a long way since playing Marla Gibbs' daughter, Brenda Jenkins, for 107 episodes in the 1985-90 TV series "227." She's directed TV shows such as "Southland," "Being Mary Jane," "Scandal," "The Catch," "Animal Kingdom," "This Is Us" and "The Good Doctor." In addition to her Oscar, she's won a Golden Globe and three prime time Emmy Awards for acting.

***

"Bombshell" is a bomb, and "Cats" is a CATastrophe! Despite having multiple Oscar winners Nicole Kidman, Charlize Theron, Allison Janney and nominees Margot Robbie and John Lithgow, "Bombshell" could only recoup $26.6 million of its $32 million cost. What happened? It could be the seven-episode Showtime miniseries, "The Loudest Voice," which won a Golden Globe for Russell Crowe's portrayal of Roger Ailes, stole their thunder and made people lose interest. Or perhaps women are just not into watching films about the "Me Too" movement.

"Cats" is a different matter. I saw the Broadway production three times and can say there was a fascination watching catlike actors moving through the audience and on stage. But getting up close and personal with them on film, with inadequate CGI, made them seem creepy. Perhaps they should have considered doing it like the "Lion King" remake, which used CGI animals. It's sad they've only recovered $58 million of their $90 million investment.

***

Also sad is Lana Wood, 73, sister of the late Natalie Wood, whose biggest film role was in the 1971 James Bond epic, "Diamonds Are Forever." She sent out an "SOS" via Facebook: "Please ... I don't have much money monthly, but I really feel to be able to live a peaceful life ... I must leave my home. I must take my dog and go. I would like a small private place, and I can pay rent. I really can't handle this abuse any longer. Help?" Our prayers are with you Lana ... and hope you find the peace you're seeking.

***

In happier news, some of your favorite TV stars are returning to television. Pauley Perrette ("CSI") has her own mid-season comedy series on CBS in "Broke." Kim Cattrall ("Sex and the City") and "Simon & Simon" star Gerald McRaney preem in May in "Filthy Rich" on Fox. "Nurse Jackie" Edie Falco returns Friday, Feb. 6, on CBS in "Tommy," and "The Nanny" herself, Fran Drescher, becomes "Indebted" with "Wings" star Steven Weber, at NBC. And the horses are at the gate ...

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Whiskey Nip -- Why not start a collection this year? It's fun and encourages healthy exercise and family outings. It creates new friendships and sometimes a lucky find brings money. Bottles can be found in stores, house sales and even dug up from old dumps. There are thousands of bottle collectors who go to shows, meetings and even on trips to add to their knowledge and collections. Prices of bottles range from a few dollars to thousands of dollars. The top prices are for antique bottles that were made in a mold or blown. The most expensive of these are figural flasks of the 18th century that have the design raised in the glass. Almost all are listed and pictured in the books by Helen McKearin, so you can find out when and where they were made.

Or search for less expensive inks, poisons, medicines, bitters, perfumes, figurals, old sodas, milks, mineral waters, miniatures and even modern Jim Beam, Avon, perfumes and children's shampoo bottles. Some people collect and display the advertising that was used to sell the products in the bottles. You can even find groups that dig for bottles in old areas. Each type of bottle has been researched, and there are books, websites, museums and clubs that share information about rarity, prices and fakes. You can even join the National Federation of Bottle Clubs, which meets in many cities and welcomes new members. It's easy to search online for information. All types are listed by name. The Kovels' online price guide shows hundreds of examples with prices. There also are numerous Kovels' books about bot-ties. This week's pictured blue clamshell-shaped bottle held whiskey. It has a screw-on metal cap used on many 1885-1900 bottles.

Q: I'd like information about a teddy bear I have. It has long mohair, felt pads on its feet, glass eyes, straw stuffing and a growler. The arms, legs and head move. It's in good condition. There is a label that reads "Made in Federal Republik of Germany."

A: Your teddy bear was made between May 1949 and October 1990, when the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) was in existence. Bears made before World War II are more desirable than newer bears. Without a maker's name, it's not possible to give a value for your bear.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was famed cultural anthropologist Margaret Mead who made the following sage observation: "One of the oldest human needs is having someone to wonder where you are when you don't come home at night."

* It's been estimated that a million pigeons live in New York City.

* When pop star Christina Aguilera is on tour, she insists on having a police escort. She hates to be stuck in traffic.

* Next time you're heading to Illinois, you can stop off in Metropolis and visit the self-declared birthplace of Superman. In honor of their hometown superhero, the citizens erected a 15-foot bronze statue of him on Main Street.

* It was Abraham Lincoln who signed into law the legislation that created the Secret Service. That very night, he was assassinated.

* Those who study such things say that on the 13th of every month, triskaidekaphobia causes a loss of $83 million to American business due to absenteeism from work and other disruptions.

* In the United States, more babies are born on Oct. 5 than on any other day of the year. If you do the math, you'll find that New Year's Eve is 9 months and 5 days before that.

***

Thought for the Day: "Show me a hero, and I will write you a tragedy." -- F. Scott Fitzgerald

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "It's tax season and that means paper season. If you don't happen to have a rubber finger cover to help you leaf through papers quickly, you can always wrap a rubber band around your fingertip to offer a bit of resistance. It's better than licking your finger!" -- R. in Indiana

* If you enjoy puzzles and board games but like to keep them in their original cardboard boxes, be sure to reinforce corners with strong clear tape BEFORE they start to crack and fall apart. Use hook and loop tape to secure bags inside the box cover so that game pieces will stay with the game. There's nothing worse than pulling out a game to find that some pieces have slipped out.

* "This might not be revolutionary, but if you put a tennis ball into a long sock and knot the sock, your dog will really like it. If they play with it outside, you can even put it right into the wash." -- K.R. in Alabama

* Remove the neck end of a soda bottle to create a disposable funnel. Use a 2-liter bottle for a large funnel and individual drink size for smaller ones. Rinse and recycle both parts when you are finished.

* Baking soda can be used as a mild abrasive to clean, but it also can help clean your teeth! Keep a small container in your bathroom and sprinkle a little bit of baking soda on your toothbrush weekly to give your pearly whites a polish between professional cleanings.

* Tuck a couple fabric softener sheets in your luggage. You can use them to combat static cling or freshen the air by placing one over the air conditioner vent. It will keep your suitcase fresh-smelling between uses, too.

us in it. She can shoot the basketball. I thought Alexa Radzik had one hell of a game defensively. She handled the ball well and made some shots. They put someone on Fallon Hobin, and we knew they were going to do that. The kid did a good job on her, but she still worked her tail off to get shots and stay within the framework of the team."

The Presidents started the game on a 6-0 run with a three-pointer from Jillian O'Toole, a two-pointer from Juliana Tracey (12 points) and a free throw from Brenna Tobin in the first 72 seconds of the game. After one quarter, the Presidents held a 19-16 lead as the Red Raiders fought hard and Hellmuth and Hobin each hit three-pointers.

The Presidents got hot to start the second quarter. Fourteen seconds in, Priscillia Bonica (11 points) sank a three-pointer which sparked a 10-0 run. Hellmuth snapped this run, making it a 29-19 game with 4:36 remaining in the first half as she made another three; she hit another three with 1:29 remaining in the half, but the Presidents led 36-24 after one half of play.

In the first minute of the second half, Radzik hit a three for the Red Raiders, but the Presidents responded with another 10-0 run. O'Toole capped off the run with a steal, fast break and layup with 3:38 remaining in the quarter to put the team up 46-27. Hobin broke up the run with a free throw with 2:06 left in the third. At the end of three quarters, the Presidents led 50-31.

"We have a lot of veterans," Bretsch said. "It's not their first time in a game like this, and I think they showed that tonight. At the beginning of the game and in the beginning of the second half, they came out very confident. They shot the ball with confidence and didn't have any of the normal jitters associated with this game and I think that was the difference. In past years, we've had some jitters in this game but this year, they knew what they needed to do and went out and did it."

In the fourth quarter, the Red Raiders outscored the Presidents 8-4 as they continued battling for the entire game. Allison McMorrow scored the Presidents' final points of the game with 4:39 remaining on a layup. She scored a team-high 17 points for the Presidents.

"Ally did a great job tonight," Bretsch said. "I think where she really was effective was rebounding the ball. She made huge contributions in that way, blocking shots, protecting the rim and she finished. She did not get a lot of opportunities, but when she did she made good on them. I think it was the punch we needed."

In the final half of the fourth quarter, the Red Raiders put up six points and did not allow any.

"It is always a game the kids get up for," Bregoli said of his team's energy. "I told them in the locker room, 'If you play with that energy and that grit and toughness going forward, you are going to win some games now.' I thought the kids played hard. That is all you can ask."

'Four Chaplains Sunday'

The Quincy Veterans Department reminds residents that Sunday, Feb. 2 has been mandated by the Congress of the United States as "Four Chaplains Sunday."

The Four Chaplains, also sometimes referred to as the "Immortal Chaplains" or the "Dorchester Chaplains" were four United States Army chaplains who gave their lives to save other civilian and military personnel as the troop ship USAT Dorchester sank on Feb. 3, 1943 during World War II.

The converted luxury liner was crossing the North Atlantic, transporting more than 900 troops to an American base in Greenland. Aboard the ship were four chaplains of different faiths: Rev. George Fox (Methodist), Jewish Rabbi Alexander Goode, Rev. Clarke Polling (Dutch Reformed) and Fr. John Washington (Roman Catholic).

Around 12:55 a.m. on Feb. 3, 1943, a German U-boat fired a torpedo that struck Dorchester's starboard side, below the water line and near the engine room. The explosion instantly killed 100 men and knocked out power and radio communication with Dorchester's three escort ships. Within 20 minutes, the transport sank and more than 670 men died.

As soldiers rushed to lifeboats, the four chaplains spread out, comforting the wounded and directing others to safety. One survivor, Private William Bedner, later said, "I would hear men crying, pleading, praying. I could also hear the chaplains preaching courage. Their voices were the only thing that kept me going."

Another survivor, John Ladd, watched the chaplains distribute life jackets, and when they ran out, they removed theirs and gave them to four young men. "It was the finest thing I have seen, or hope to see, this side of heaven," he recalled.

As Dorchester sank, the chaplains were seen linked arm in arm, praying.

Fox, Goode, Poling and Washington were posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart.

Man's Death Not Suspicious

By SCOTT JACKSON

The death of a 60-year-old Quincy man on the Parkway in Quincy Center Saturday morning is not suspicious, investigators said.

Quincy police were called to the Parkway in the area of School Street around 9:30 a.m. Saturday for a report of a sudden death, according to Sgt.

Karyn Barkas.

David Traub, a spokesman for the Norfolk District Attorney's office, said investigators were awaiting a final report from the state medical examiner but there were no signs of foul play.

Traub identified the man as a 60-year-old Quincy resident. His name had not been released, pending notification of next of kin.

Pedestrian Seriously Injured In Germantown

By SCOTT JACKSON

The 80-year-old man who was struck by a vehicle Monday morning in Germantown remained in critical condition at an area hospital Tuesday.

The man was hit in the area of the Palmer Street rotary around 9:15 a.m. Monday, according to Sgt. Karyn Barkas. He was rushed to Boston Medical Center with what were described as serious injuries.

Barkas on Tuesday said the man remained in critical condition at the hospital.

The driver of the vehicle involved in the crash stayed on scene, Barkas said. The crash remained under investigation as of Tuesday, and no charges have been filed pending its completion.
